On the Serving of

CLARET

Claret is a fragile and delicate work of art. The moment during which Claret can be appreciated at its perfection is short lived. It can never again recover those enchanting ethers, which are dissipated in the air after the bottle has been opened. For this reason Claret must be drunk as soon as it is opened, and nothing but disappointment and disgust is to be earned by storing up "heel taps" for some future meal.

World's Fair:
Wanted for Shanghai

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—I would like to make a suggestion through your valuable paper which would possibly help to bring some hope of brighter days ahead.

The suggestion is that a World's Fair be held here in Shanghai from September 1 to November 30, in 1940.

Such a proposal made public and freely commented upon might result in some definite decision to hold such a Fair. This would help to turn the attention and the eyes of the public from the present gloomy outlook to a happier and brighter future for Shanghai, and also tend to make possible better and more friendly relations between the many different nationalities represented here in Shanghai.

A World's Fair held here in 1940 would bring to other interested nations and individuals a hope that the policy of the open door in China is being fostered and planned for by all parties interested in and concerned about the future of Shanghai, and China.

Chinese living abroad in all parts of the world would probably have less apprehension that there is no hope for peace in China, and the deep wound that this war has inflicted might be relieved in some measure by the unity that a World's Fair should bring.

To plan for a World's Fair in 1940 would probably bring to Shanghai business men some hope that the internal and external relations as to China's future might be reconstructed on a basis that would lead to a happier and healthier co-operation between all parties concerned in the welfare of Shanghai and China. Japan, I am sure, is not desirous of fostering the ill-will of any nation and to create and welcome a common interest such as a World's Fair would induce would prove her sincere desire that unity and prosperity be restored to Shanghai and China as soon as possible.

Let us strive to bury the hatchet of hate and hope for peace and good will and the prosperity that will relieve the sting of defeat in some measure.

To start the ball rolling, a World's Fair planned for and fostered by true and sincere co-operation would greatly help to restore a better feeling here in Shanghai between all nationalities. Let us hope that a new and bigger and greater Shanghai may be built up and that the wound of "war" may be healed as soon as possible. The grudge that war must bring, if fostered too long, cannot produce peace and blessing for Shanghai. There is nothing better than a common interest to help unite people and cause them to drop their contentions and differences.

To hold a World's Fair here in Shanghai from September 1 to November 30 1940 might prove a common interest that would produce a better outlook for the future of Shanghai. Peiping and other parts of China and all ports en route to Shanghai (including Japan) would naturally benefit by the large number of tourists and visitors that a World's Fair would be expected to bring. To have and hold the expectation of such a Fair here in Shanghai would give us something better to think about and look forward to than the dark picture that this war has produced for many.

Refugees might be used to help prepare for the World's Fair and New Shanghai would be a good location, so it would seem to the writer, but it cannot be a successful Fair without full Japanese accord and help in order to bring it to pass. Here's for a hearty hand-shake for everyone who hopes for and seeks to bring peace again in China.

The truest and surest road to peace is to be found in the teachings of the Lord Jesus Christ, "The Prince of Peace," namely "Love your enemies—do good to them that hate you" (Matthew 5:44).

All native industries should be represented in the native manner of manufacture and native products and modes of harvesting the crops should be exhibited. Fishing nets and fishing boats with a flock of pelicans, farm implements, native modes of transportation such as the chair, the wheel-barrow and the donkey should be for exhibit—the latter three also for hire. A few brides' chairs, a Chinese funeral procession and a host of other interesting things could be displayed. Chinese carvings, curios, silk work, pottery, etc., could be for sale and on display. Japanese goods should be welcomed too, and anything the foreigner can produce to make the Fair a success. Foreign objects of interest and of note, such as the Canadian Quintuplets, a model of the highest New York sky-scraper, with a card giving particulars, the new Golden Gate Bridge represented in an exact model of the original, giving dimensions, and many other things of interest.

These are but a few suggestions but I am sure that with co-operation there will be a store of good ideas and much material brought to light that would help to make the Fair a success.

Some may hold the opinion that a World's Fair is a costly undertaking. This may be true but the foreign visitors to Shanghai would be bringing gold dollars and would expect to pay reasonable prices to see exhibits, and an entrance fee of one Chinese dollar would be less than twenty cents American money at the present rate of exchange.

The construction and decorating of buildings for a World's Fair here in Shanghai would cost but a fraction of what the cost would be in United States or Canada. One million dollars gold at the present rate of exchange could be turned into over six million Chinese dollars.

Again carpenters and other skilled mechanics can be employed for one dollar per day Chinese money. This, compared with American carpenters (say from $6.00 to $8.00 gold per day) brings the cost of a Chinese carpenter per day down to one thirty-sixth to one forty-eighth of the amount paid to an American carpenter per day. Chinese artists who paint our advertising signs along Nanking Road could be employed for decorating purposes at a small fraction of the sum paid to American artists. In other words, a World's Fair could be financed here at a small fraction of the amount it would cost in England or the United States, provided the exchange rate held good.

The countries who have been selling millions of dollars worth of war material to both parties of the present war might do well to spend some of the profits to help establish peace in a peaceful way rather than to use the money to "re-arm" in order to demand peace at the end of a gun.

Let us hope that there are business men here in Shanghai or in the States or England who see a good opportunity for helping to make peace and make money.

Hiram Mussen.

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—Reuter, in the last few days, gave us the welcome news that the British Government had decided on abandoning the partitioning scheme of Palestine, and that it has intended to continue its responsibility for the government of the land until such time when Jews and Arabs shall have come to some understanding.

Under present conditions, I think, this is the best decision the Government could have arrived at. The partitioning scheme was an unfortunate gesture which was resented by both Arabs and Jews alike, and had the scheme been seen in this light from its outset, present turmoil and loss to life and property might have been avoided.

The only way now left to the Palestine Government is to carry on with the Balfour Declaration, with some modifications if need be, and I am of opinion that in the long run the Arabs will get reconciled to the ruling conditions, and they will have no cause to regret reasonable inflow of Jewish emigrants into the land. They have had, so far, no tangible grievance against the Jews, and if there was any, surely it could have been seen into and adjusted equitably.

The first ten years—1918/1928—of British administration in Palestine having passed by peacefully and prosperously to all concerned, there was no reason why the succeeding years—1929/1938—should have been fraught with so much discontent and heartburning. The Arabs owned lands which were barren and malaria-stricken, and up to the Jewish advent on the scene these lands were neglected and uncultivable. They sold a fractional part of these lands to the Jews at fabulous prices, enhancing thereby the value of the major part thereof which is still owned by them, and they were pleased and happy at that. Then all of a sudden a hue and cry was raised by their leaders to the effect that the Arabs were exploited and dispossessed by the Jews. If that was a genuine complaint, the simplest remedy would have been to hold on further sales, and nothing on earth could have forced them to part with their holdings. But it was soon found out that the hue and cry was a made-up game concocted by the heads of the Arab community, having its background at Berlin and Rome. It was Nazis' and Fascists' sinister design that had first stirred the Arab leaders, who in turn influenced and worked up the lower order of the community to acts of violence and disorder. It is very obvious how Nazis' and Fascists' influence was at work, and was the main cause of the chaotic conditions rampant in Palestine these past three years. Had the Arabs been left alone and not agitated by this malpractice, there would have been no Palestine problem today, and it was to these busy bees at Berlin and Rome that Great Britain should have turned its attention and protested against Nazi and Fascist meddling in affairs other than their own.

The round-table conference in London between Arabs and Jews is a good move, and it may prove to be the harbinger of good results. I see no reason why Jews and Arabs could not be brought to work together side by side in peace and harmony.

Hopeful.

The Portuguese:
Forgotten Explanation

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—Mr. L. Lengten and those at whose obvious suggestion this time-worn subject of discussion is being revived, have apparently forgotten the explanation already given of the state of things which he refers to.

Quite a number of the Portuguese residing in Shanghai are married to foreigners. The common form of the English language, as it is spoken in the East, is their only medium of conversation. In proof of this, I may recall a statement made to me by a lady more than a year ago: "I am English by birth and was married some years ago to a Portuguese. Though my husband is conversant with his mother-tongue, I do not know the language, and we naturally speak English to each other. My children in turn speak English."

This is the case in a nutshell, whether the wife be British, American, or Russian, and mixed marriages are of frequent occurrence in China. Small wonder, then, that English is still today predominant in more families than one. And who can quarrel with the use of so practical and beautiful a language.

As to their predilection for service in a banking or other commercial establishment, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. Out of three friends of mine who either died or retired after thirty to forty years of service in a bank, one left the very welcome sum of $60,000 to his heirs. The next had the sum of $80,000 in his provident fund. And the third $120,000. Are professional men as successful as these clerks in the long run?

In our ignorance of the circumstances of the early life of the original Portuguese settlers in China, we cannot really affirm that they were pioneers in every sense of the word, but they have certainly contributed to the welfare of the Settlements. And it must be said to their credit that in spite of early discouragement and all manner of adverse circumstance, their lives have been marked by the utmost devotion to their principles.

In conclusion, I submit that there has never been any criticism of the Portuguese Government by reputable members of the community, the more so as appeals made to Lisbon have never failed to receive sympathetic consideration. It is possible that the gentleman who rejoices in the name of Lengten may have been inspired by a genuine enthusiasm for the welfare of the community, but, to my thinking, a direct appeal to his own countrymen would have been more appropriate in the circumstances.

Ewo Mills:
Interim Dividend Wanted

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—For some time now I have been daily expecting to see in the local press an announcement by The Ewo Cotton Mills Ltd. of the declaration of an interim dividend.

The management's continued silence in this connection is to a great many shareholders, of whom I am one, somewhat perplexing.

Cotton Mills as a class, that is those that have been able to work, have enjoyed marked prosperity, throughout this financial year.

Whilst I have no knowledge of the actual figures of The Ewo Cotton Mills Ltd., I can speak authoritatively of others, which are exceptionally good.

Furthermore Ewo Cotton Mills Ltd. have enjoyed the special profits from weaving cloth, which by comparison, are much greater than from spinning yarn, whereas the mills I have in mind, spin yarn only.

Anyway the figures published this morning by The Shanghai Cotton Manufacturing Co. clearly establish beyond all doubt the prosperity which the mills have enjoyed, since this Company alone shows a net working profit for the six months ending October 31 of four million dollars.

The Ewo Cotton Mills Ltd. on the other hand have had the benefit of ten months of very profitable working, and surely the time has arrived when shareholders are entitled to expect some distribution on account of profits in the form of an interim dividend.

The Armistice:
Twenty Years After

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—Twenty years after the Armistice!

Many of the ideals that we fought for twenty years ago have recently seemed to become more and more remote. Armed might is today challenging the very spirit of democracy which is founded on peaceful negotiations and on law. No one knows just what the end will be. However, in many hearts and minds throughout the world today there seems to be an unshakeable belief that war is both futile and criminal. But running parallel with this there is also a widespread belief that peace without honour is neither laudable nor permanent. If the conscience of the world gives way before aggressors, we have reached a sorry state indeed.

The enclosed poem "Twenty Years After" was written in memory of friends and associates who gave their lives in the World War. It is thus a memorial to John McCrae who wrote "In Flanders Fields" and to all those brave men who made the supreme sacrifice in a war to end war.

You are at liberty to make any use you wish of it on Armistice Day or thereafter. It expresses a creed that is enshrined today in millions of hearts throughout the world.

Gilbert Darlington.
Lieutenant Commander, N.Y.N.M.

New York, Oct. 18.

Twenty Years After

In Flanders fields the poppies grow
Between the crosses, row on row.
The larks again are singing high
Above the places where we lie
In Flanders fields

Oh, keep our torch of faith aglow
To banish war. Let nations know
That, if aggression's hands untie
The scourge of war, yours will reply.

So long as human blood shall flow.
We are the dead. If to and fro
Across our graves fresh armies go,
We shall not sleep! To us you owe
An end to war,—while poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

Chinese Names:
And Foreign Importations

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—In your editorial entitled "A Great Man Dies" which gives a brief account of Kemal's revolutionary work for rebuilding up Turkey, there are these significant words: "He orders his people to take Turkish names, to become Turks first and last and all the time." I am sure that the words must have made a profound impression in the mind of many of your Chinese readers.

You often find that a modern Chinese, especially the student, has a foreign name. A thousand and one English and French names have been adopted, ranging from the commonest John and Mary to the fanciest Romeo and Juliet. And most probably these John's and Mary's are sipping Ceylon tea with cream, or wearing Parisian silk, when the native products are just as good, if not better.

But by far the majority of the educated Chinese, and men of international renown like Hu Shih, the Chinese Ambassador to the United States, and Lin Yu-tang, philologist and writer of "My Country and My People," have never assumed foreign names. They simply spell their Chinese names in English so as to give the same pronunciation. And who that is proud of his country and people will not appreciate Kemal's order?

A Chinese.

The Scouts:
More "Pep" Wanted

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—In the report of the Scouts' meeting held yesterday Mr. Crickmer, Badge Secretary, is reported to have given a list of boys who gained the King's Scout badge. It is interesting to note that all were from the 1st Land and 1st Sea Scouts (Cathedral School).

Hearty congratulations to the good scouts who won the badge,—but the evident failure of all the other troops to "come up to the scratch" is puzzling and somewhat disturbing.

The report deplores the lack of support from the general public, but if the Scoutmasters and the scouts themselves do not infuse more "pep" than Mr. Crickmer's statement indicates no wonder the support from the general public will drop.

As one who is a very keen follower of Baden-Powell's grand scheme to improve the good citizen spirit in boys all over the world I do hope that the scouts of the Jewish, Catholic, Union Church, and the Public Schools etc. will "buck up" and win a few King's Scout badges. Boys, "Be Prepared."

Ex-Scout.

Sixty Years Ago

From the "North-China Daily News" of November 17, 1878

There is something very ludicrous in the Taotai's fussy anxiety to preserve the morals of people living in the foreign Settlements from contamination by bands of strolling musicians. Dirty and offensive these vagabonds are no doubt, and "depraved" probably also, but it is the depravity of their music rather than of their habits that strikes the foreigner who has not reached the lofty moral elevation at which alone a Chinese official can find air clear enough to breathe. We fancy we could point to at least half a score of police-protected institutions in the Settlements more dangerous to morality than the few bands of strollers upon whom the Taotai's fulminations have descended. But as there is nothing so bad that its character cannot be redeemed by imposing a tax on it, the remedy is obvious. An agreement between the Councils and the Taotai as to the levy to be made on these dismal serenaders is all that is necessary to transform them from dangerous ruffians into respectable members of the community.

The China Campaign Committee is issuing a Christmas letter to the children of Great Britain, urging them to help China by giving some of the money they will receive for Christmas for the relief of destitute Chinese children and to refuse to buy Japanese toys and crackers. The letter is signed by Commander Stephen King-Hall, Mr. J. B. S. Haldane, and other prominent intellectuals. It will be distributed in the London shopping centres by a poster parade led by "Father Christmas."

Back Teeth Decay First
It is a fact that in 8 out of 10 cases, back teeth decay first. Why? Because the ordinary tooth brush does not reach and clean the back teeth. That is the reason for the big end-tuft of the Pro-phy-lac-tic Perma-Grip. It reaches the hard-to-get-at back teeth, removes every tiny food particle—cleans thoroughly, protects against decay—as no other brush can.

FROM SHANGHAI FOOTLIGHTS AND FILMS

"Tip-off Girls"

The Metropol Theatre today is featuring Mary Carlisle and Lloyd Nolan (above), with Roscoe Karns, Larry Crabbe, J. Carrol Naish, Evelyn Brent and Anthony Quinn in support.

"Lady in the Morgue"

At the Cathay today, the pjicture having opened yesterday, Preston Foster and Patricia Ellis are in the featured roles. In support are Frank Jenks, Thomas Jackson and Barbara Pepper.

"Marie Antoinette"

In M.G.M.'s big hit of the season, now at the Nanking Theatre, Norma Shearer and Tyrone Power have the leading roles, associated being Robert Morley, Anita Louise and Henry Stephenson.

"The Texans"

Randolph Scott and Joan Bennett have the starring roles in this romantic pioneering thriller. Others in the cast, today at the Grand, include May Robson, Walter Brennan and Robert Barrat.

Cost of "Cowboy" More Than Doubled

Samuel Goldwyn has decided that dashing off a little motion picture for a trifling $600,000 is not for him. "The Lady and the Cowboy" is "temporarily completed" after an 86-day shooting schedule, which was originally intended to last but 36-days. Instead of the anticipated figure, it is possible that the completed film will cost Goldwyn $1,250,000, which puts it right up among his better endeavours.

The reason for the distress surrounding "The Lady and the Cowboy" is that the producer had Merle Oberon and Gary Cooper on salary with no vehicle for them. "Cowboy" had been on the shelf after several writers had worked on it and was dusted off and rewritten, with the typewriters barely ahead of the camera. Directors were changed and all that had been done was re-done.

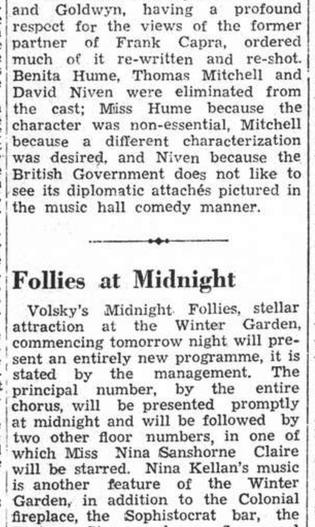
Then Robert Riskin joined the staff, and Goldwyn, having a profound respect for the views of the former partner of Frank Capra, ordered much of it re-written and re-shot. Benita Hume, Thomas Mitchell and David Niven were eliminated from the cast; Miss Hume because the character was non-essential, Mitchell because a different characterization was desired, and Niven because the British Government does not like to see its diplomatic attachés pictured in the music hall comedy manner.

Follies at Midnight

Volsky's Midnight Follies, stellar attraction at the Winter Garden, commencing tomorrow night will present an entirely new programme, it is stated by the management. The principal number, by the entire chorus, will be presented promptly at midnight and will be followed by two other floor numbers, in one of which Miss Nina Sanshorne Claire will be starred. Nina Kellan's music is another feature of the Winter Garden, in addition to the Colonial fireplace, the Sophistocrat bar, the Postage Stamp dance floor and various games of skill. The popular Lambeth Walk is danced every night, being demonstrated by Miss Nina Kellan and Tommy Missman.

Russian Light Opera

Inasmuch as the two most recent productions of the Russian Light Opera, "Bells of Corneville" and "The Dollar Princess," were so highly appreciated by Shanghai music-lovers, the management have decided to stage repeat performances in the Lyceum, respectively on Saturday and Sunday nights. Rosen, Bitner, Zorich, Kudinoff and Slobodskoy were outstanding in the former, while in "The Dollar Princess" Valin, Orlovskaya and Poliakova interpreted their roles in an excellent manner.



Platoff's Don Cossacks

N. F. Kostrukoff directs the choir at the Lyceum tonight.

New Lease of Life for Cinema Comedians

Cantor's Arrangement with RKO and Metro

The faces of the cinema's comedians have lost their mournful look in recent days because the purveyors of laughter see in the association of Eddie Cantor with RKO and Metro a probable upturn in the comedy market. Things have been going against the comics of late, with many of them dropped from studio rosters and no new ones drafted from the radio. The fact that such a broad comedian as Cantor could tear up his Fox agreement and gain immediate attention at two other major studios has given them reason to hope that bottom has been reached and that slapstick in its various forms will again be viewed in its true value.

Cantor's disagreement with Fox resulted in a clash over story and production ideas. Cantor favours the minstrel type of show and is reported to object to sharing limelight with other performers. Fox felt that he should have a reasonably good story—in face of the dismal returns from "Ali Baba Goes to Town"—and insisted that his proposed one, "Mr. Average Man," should be strong in plot and supporting players. Both sides felt so strongly on the matter that when the comedian hinted that his contract could be torn up. Fox accommodated him with alarming speed.

The reported Metro deal is said to provide Cantor with the type of vehicle that he desires. There is some mystery surrounding his RKO venture, which will be first, for it is understood that he will not sing in the picture.

High Mortality Rate

The mortality rate among comics has been high in recent months. With the acquisition of Harry Langdon as his new partner, Oliver Hardy is to embark upon a more genteel type of humour. The options on the services of Milton Berle, Joe Penner and Parkyakarkas have not been exercised by RKO. The team of Wheeler and Woolsey is no more. a telegram yesterday said that Mr. Wookey has died. The Marx Brothers presented a subdued appearance—subdued for them, that is—in "Room Service," and the Ritz Brothers appear to be enjoying a rating slightly under the crest of their popularity.

Even Edward Everett Horton's appearances have become more infrequent. Roscoe Karns has left Paramount after six years. Seen seldom in outright comedy roles are Vince Barnett, Roscoe Ates, Skeets Gallagher, Jimmy Durante, Raymond Hatton, Frank McHugh, Charles Butterworth, Walter Catlett and Cliff Edwards.

Miriam Hopkins

Two or three years ago, Miss Miriam Hopkins was one of the most popular and successful of all the stars, but of late fortune has not dealt her any outstanding favours. Her one appearance in an English picture was not worthy of her ability. The crazy comedies with which she experimented were rather condescensions on her part although she went through them with great point and vivacity. The last time she appeared in a picture worthy of her was when she shared the cast of "These Three" with Merle Oberon and Joel McCrae.

Miss Hopkins is about to launch out again with a new producing company. She has been released from her contracts with Goldwyn and Radio and has been signed up by Warners in his studios. Anatole Litvak, her husband, is a director there. Her first picture with Warners will be the screen version of James Hilton's "We are not alone" and there is a possibility that Ronald Colman will co-star with her. But Miss Hopkins has no intention of staying with one company, as before long she will go to Columbia for "Our Wife" with Jean Arthur and Cary Grant. All these plans and activities imply that the fascinating star does not intend to remain any longer in semi-obscurity.

The Impeccable Parson

Mr. Will Hays, who is the virtual censor of films in the United States, keeps a strict and tender eye on vicarages and manses. He will permit no suggestion of scandalous conduct in a clergyman. To satisfy his requirements, Miss Daphne du Maurier's novel, "Jamaica Inn," will be drastically altered when it is turned into a film for the Pemmer-Laughton company.

Mr. Laughton will play the chief and highly unpleasant character of the parson in "Jamacia Inn" as a squire with strongly developed criminal tendencies. One does not know if the large American public over whose morals Mr. Hays keeps such a watchful eye are as sensitive as is their guardian. One heard recently of how the American act of expurgation made short work of a scene in which a clergyman entered a simple country inn for a harmless drink. This is all the more surprising as members of other professions seem to stick at no villainy in Hollywood land.

Maria Ouspenskaya

Those who saw "Dodsworth" and "Marie Walewska" will remember the wonderful old lady who displayed a quiet pride of race before Fran Dodsworth and the equally wonderful old lady who played cards with Napoleon. Maria Ouspenskaya, who impersonated both, will appear in "Love Affair" with Charles Boyer and Irene Dunne. This actress, no longer young, was once a star in the Moscow Art Theatre and her long experience has provided her with the means to hold the screen against any comer however glamorous or forceful.

"Thief of Baghdad"

Memories of a very famous picture will be revived by the announcement of the technicolour version of "The Thief of Baghdad" to be made by Mr. Alexander Korda at the Denham studios. The original "Thief of Baghdad" was regarded by many as Mr. Douglas Fairbanks (senior) most successful film. It gave ample opportunity for the physical ability of the star and introduced a great many very effective magic tricks. For making this picture, Samuel Goldwyn has temporarily released Jon Hall who starred in "Hurricane" and with him will be Sabu, the famous elephant boy.

The director of "The Thief of Baghdad" will be Marc Allegret, one of the most famous of the French directors. He it was who made "Gribouille," "Orage" and "Lac aux Dames," the picture which introduced Simone Simon to the screen. M. Allegret's name should be a guarantee of the artistic excellence of this new picture and there will be interesting comparisons with the original one for which Mr. Fairbanks was his own director.

"Alexander's Ragtime Band"

Tyrone Power and Alice Faye soon will be at the Grand.

French Club Dance

A very attractive programme has been arranged for the French Club dinner dance on Saturday. Heading the list of artistes is the premiere danseuse, Mlle. H. Bobinin, who achieved such an outstanding success in the recent Russian Ballet. Two turns of a contrasting nature will be rendered by the dance team, K. and N. Kniazeff.

Last Saturday's floor-show met with such appreciation, that there is no doubt that those who attend on November 19 will not be disappointed. The following is the actual programme arranged :—

"Danse Eccentrique".....K and N. Kniazeff.

"Valse Chopin"....Mlle. H. Bobinin.

"Danse Humoresque"....Mlle. Lili Verni.

"Danse Comique".....K. and N. Kniazeff.

"Fandango"....Mlle. H. Bobinin.

That the Lambeth Walk has taken Shanghai by storm was evident by the enthusiasm with which this number was danced time after time by the crowds which thronged the French Club Ballroom last Saturday.

Once more the Committee requests members to assist by making reservations as early as possible.

Jessfield Club Novelties

Among the first to play "The Lambeth Walk," the dance hit which has taken Shanghai by storm, was the Jessfield Club Trio—Eddie, George and Johnnie, but one should hear the way they play "A Tisket—a Tasket" and Stop Playin' Round the Mulberry Bush." These two numbers are the latest and most popular numbers in America and requests are received nightly for the orchestra to render them.

The unique combination of two grand pianos and a drum is everything in melody and rhythm which one needs for irresistible dance music and so entertaining that one's feet can hardly be prevented from tapping.

Eddie Boder and George Roth are in a class by themselves as they play any and all standard overtures, classical works and selections of many nationalities. Johnnie Bulmer, master of ceremonies and drummer, presents nightly a varied selection of novelty songs on the floor. Patrons of the Jessfield Club suggest a "Bit of Scotsh," "Say it with Liquor" or other comedy items and Johnnie gladly responds.

Colony's Film Future

Whether Hongong has become the film capital of Asia, supplanting Shanghai, is still a matter of doubt, but the fact that the United Artist's masterpiece, "Adventures of Marco Polo," had its China premiere in the Colony might indicate the cinema's growth there.

Mr. Norman Westwood, Far Eastern representative for the company, has just returned and states that the public highly acclaimed the film. Booking dates for Shanghai will be announced later.

Shyest Film Scores

Hollywood was staggered recently by "The Citadel," film of A. J. Cronin's famous novel of a doctor's progress, which received its world premiere at the Westwood Theatre.

But people are already speaking of it as the "shyest British film hit."

For three-quarters of the audience were unaware that it had been produced in Britain, because the fact was not mentioned in the credit lines.

The Westwood Theatre is near the University of Southern California, and sociology students—and ordinary housewives, too—were shocked by the shots of Welsh miners' housing conditions.

"If they live in hovels like those, no wonder they don't want to fight for Czechoslovakia," was one comment.

Robert Donat's performance as Dr. Manson was agreed to be probably the best of his career.

And the general opinion was that the picture was the most revealing and realistic film of British working-class life ever shown.

'Man to Remember' Rare Hybrid

Difficult to Publicize Human Interest Film With No Star Attraction

There have been several instances in which studios, confronted with a meritorous picture that failed to fit into the usual formulas employed to exploit films, have been confounded to such an extent that the publicity departments have thrown up their hands and allowed the offerings to go out into the cold world and shift for themselves without the benefit of press agentry genius.

Seeing in "A Man to Remember" one of those rare hybrids—a good picture that cost very little to make—the boys at RKO sit up nights to concoct some method by which an unusual film containing no names of box office importance may be sold.

Adapted from Katharine Haviland-Taylor's story "Failure," produced by Robert Sisk, former press agent for Manhattan's Theatre Guild, and directed by Garson Kanin as his first picture since leaving George Abbott, the picture cost approximately $100,000, which is peanuts in Hollywood, and created a more profound critical impression than any recent epic costing ten times that amount.

The first Hollywood knew of the film was when a few correspondents were invited to an RKO projection room to see it. No general preview had been held. Nothing was known about the yarn, for Kanin was an unknown; the cast, headed by Edward Ellis, was of a nonspectacular nature and the press had stayed away from the sets in large numbers. In light of the prevailing impression, RKO felt that the confidential approach would intrigue the newspaper boys.

Successful Preview

Too, because of the peculiar mood and theme of the film, it was deemed dangerous to preview it in front of a Hollywood-wise audience. The raucous laugh of a preview addict at the wrong moment might start the audience on a stampede. So it was shown in comparative secrecy. As a result of the reports that filtered through the town from that small audience, the picture was given a public preview two days later and, with the audience thoroughly conditioned for what was coming, the event was a success.

Just what the campaign will be to engage the customers has not been determined, for the studio feels that it must be as far from the beaten path as is the offering.

The story deals with an unsuccessful doctor in a small town and opens with his funeral procession, at which all the residents turn out to mourn. The town's three leading citizens watch the cortege and deplore the fact that such a worthless fellow should be paid such homage, and prophetically they voice the opinion that not a half-dozen outside their own families will go to their funerals. Through a series of cut-backs, the story of Ellis's life since entering the town is told, and while a little attention is given the romance of Anne Shirley and Lee Bowman, the plot centres on the homely events in the life of the country doctor.

"George and Margaret"

Playgoers are reminded that the second A.D.C. production of the season is due at the Lyceum Theatre next week on Wednesday and the three following nights.

The Club is to be congratulated on giving Shanghai an opportunity of witnessing Mr. Gerald Savory's exceedingly attractive comedy depicting English family life of the present day. Witty in dialogue and clever in characterization the play is without a dull moment from the rise to the fall of the curtain and reports have it that the producer, Mr. Smith-Wright, has not failed to bring out every point in the course of its three acts. The plot introduces some novel situations of a highly diverting nature and it is safe to say that "George and Margaret" is likely to prove one of the A.D.C.'s most successful productions in a very long series.

Casanova Acrobats

The Marcus Troupe, acrobatic dancers and acrobats, formerly a part of the original Marcus Show which visited Shanghai a few years ago, will open an engagement tonight at the Casanova Ballroom. The troupe will succeed the Astor Trio, whose engagement ended last night. The Marcus Troupe will present a thrilling type of entertainment and a type which is quite different from that usually seen in a night club or cabaret. The Casanova remains open all night and employs only foreign hostesses. Music for dancing is furnished by Apollo's Gaucho band.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS

That remarkable nonagenarian, Shanghai, is 95 today, for on November 17, 1843, Sir Henry Pottinger on his way to Nanking, stopped over at Shanghai selected a site for the British Concession, and declared the port open to trade. The first British officials in Shanghai were Captain Balfour of the Madras Artillery, and Dr. W. H. Medhurst, interpreter, who had landed here eight days previously from a small steamer which had brought them from the Chusan islands, which it was at one time thought Britain would select as a place for settlement. There was nothing but a mud flat to be seen, dotted here and there with villages, some of which still remain tucked away in the heart of this great city. There was a path along the Whangpoo used for towing junks and away to the south was the walled city in which as late as 1845, the British officials and a dozen foreign residents, merchants or Protestant missionaries, were still living. But the energy of the British was not to be denied, and one of the footnotes to the "Histoire de la Concession Francaise de Changhai" by Messrs. Ch. B.-Maybon and Jean Fredet, records that on July 11, 1847 the Jesuit Father Roze wrote "The English town which has arisen as if by magic is a real prodigy. They do not construct European houses here, but sumptuous palaces of all kinds." Undoubtedly that was something of an exaggeration, but the passage does pay a tribute to the energy which was being displayed by the early pioneers. The offices of the British Consulate were already established in the English Concession the Victoria Hotel was standing where there is now the Palace Hotel, and the "veritable palaces" of the English merchants of Italian, Greek or Middle Age architecture, astonished the French missionary from the interior with the rapidity with which they had arisen on the desolate flats. The Consulate itself was to be built later, in 1849, for in order to establish their right of free movement the British insisted that the Consul should have his residence in the Chinese City.

One of these days someone will write a really fine history of the British endeavour in Shanghai, and how the foundations of this great city were well and truly laid in those very early days, when the energy and vitality of the newcomers of all nationalities commenced a growth which was to make Shanghai one of the most important cities in the world. There were many mistakes made, chiefly owing to a lack of understanding of the potentialities of the place, and that is best shown in the success of the old contention that roads wide enough to permit two bales of silk to pass each other were ample for the requirements of the place. Looking back, and realizing what has happened in Shanghai during the last quarter of a century, and the expensive efforts which are continually being made to deal with the city's growing traffic, the conclusion is inevitable that Shanghai, like Topsy, "just growed." There is no evidence of any long term planning, but the city forefathers appear to have dealt with their troubles at all times with the underlying thought that they were not to be here for ever and consequently the future was none of their concern. The British had to have their race course—as a matter of fact three different ones in the 95 years—their theatre—though that for some years was merely whatever godown was available for the purpose at the time—and their Church, and then, with a few roads with completely English names, like Rope Walk and Park Lane to give the place a homely atmosphere, Shanghai settled down to the task of becoming great. It has been a remarkable achievement. The formation of the International Settlement by the amalgamation of the English and the American Concessions was but an incident in the story, but an important one. It gave the place certain benefits, but also manifest disadvantages. On the balance, however, it was a good move and much of the prosperity of the place is to be traced back to this act of wisdom.

So five years hence Shanghai will be celebrating its centenary, a sturdy youth with a future before it rich with potentialities. It is impossible, looking back over the vicissitudes through which the port has passed and the manner it has emerged from them, to believe that the present setback from which it is suffering will have anything more than a transient effect upon its fortunes. The manner in which it is braving its present difficulties is ample proof of the soundness of its constitution, and, though the period of recovery may prove somewhat long compared with the urgences of mortality, there is little room for doubt that Shanghai will recover and march on to greater heights. There is much to be said for the belief that the present constitution of the International Settlement has been largely responsible for the progress which has been made, and every reason to believe that, under a continuance of that government, similar progress may be depended upon for the future. That Shanghai has been able to take such hard knocks as the incidents of 1932 and 1937 clearly demonstrates the enormous vitality of the place. It is true that it is suffering more now than it has ever done before, and that the country as a whole is passing through a catastrophe only to be compared with the Taiping rebellion. But the devastated areas will have to recover, there will be an enormous amount of rehabilitation work to be done, and Shanghai may confidently expect to be called upon to do its part in that most important work. There may, it is true be some changes in Shanghai and its environs, but the people who made the International Settlement of today possible, may be depended to resort to the same community of effort which must prove successful. To accept as in any way final the gloomy outlook of the present is to encourage a spirit of defeatism completely foreign to the genius of the place. Upper lips will be stiffened by remembrance of Shanghai's past history, the best possible augury for the future which can best be described in the homely wish "Many happy returns of the day."

Thanks to The Garrison

The 2nd Battalion, The East Surrey Regiment disembarked yesterday from the Santhia and marched to their billets in Great Western Road and Jessfield Park. As the men marched through the streets in command of Lieut.-Col. E.L.L. Acton, they presented a smart appearance although their arrival in Shanghai was delayed owing to the exigencies of the situation which resulted in short periods of service at Singapore and Hongkong. Their arrival in Shanghai is timely and welcome because it restores the British garrison strength to two battalions and disposes of the unfounded and widespread rumours that a considerable reduction in foreign troops in this area was contemplated. From the British point of view, it is also important for it affords a relief to the hardworked Seaforths, upon whom fell general duties after the departure of the last battalion. Since Shanghai became a garrison town in 1927 when British troops were first seen here after decades, the familiarity with the presence of British troops and the changes of battalions have grown to be a routine measure which has tended unfortunately to lessen the interest and appreciation of the British community in the affairs of these battalions which are here for communal defence. It needs but little thought to appreciate the tremendous service these men perform for the community, and events of the past years only emphasize what is done in less spectacular times. The Seaforths have been doing a two battalion job with one battalion and doing it well. The relief that comes to them by the arrival of another battalion will be accompanied by the British community's thanks.

Medical Miracles

It is indeed an ironic fate which decrees that, at a time when reports come from so many quarters of scientific discoveries aiming at the betterment of human life, the world should be beset by the threat of national and international strife on an unprecedented scale. In every department of our social, industrial and intellectual life modern scientists offer us results of their patient research work which, had mankind only the sense to apply them rightly, might transform our troubled world into realms of peace and plenty for all. Still, despite all disappointments, scientists of all nations carry on their work, and some recent discoveries in the field of medicine are of particular interest. In England an artificial substitute for radium has been produced under the name of "radio sodium," and has been tested for eighteen months at one of London's largest hospitals. As is well known, radium is applied in modern therapy for the cure of cancer. It is a very rare and extremely expensive substance, whereas the new substitute can be prepared at a low price. 'Radio sodium' promises to be more effective than radium, it is less violent in its action, and can be used more extensively. Another British discovery is a drug call "M and B 693" which cures the dreaded disease pneumococcal meningitis, an ailment from which, until this recent discovery, very few patients recovered. Several other serious diseases, such as puerperal fever and blood poisoning, have also been cured by this or other drugs belonging to the same group.

Britain's Stately Homes

The large country houses in Great Britain are famous throughout the world for their beauty and quiet charm, unparalleled elsewhere in the world. These characteristics are the natural result of the peace and absence of civil strife which has been a main feature of British life for so many centuries. The country house of a prominent British family was built, not as a means of protection for a barbaric war lord and his henchmen, but rather as an informal and comfortable home for a cultured aristocrat; a fact which is abundantly evident in the delicate architecture of the buildings and their lack of fortifications. But the great social changes of the 20th century impoverished many of the old families throughout the country, and they found themselves obliged to sell their homes for use as institutions or in some cases even for demolition value. A number of these estates have been acquired by the National Trust as show places, and although they are thus safe for the nation, most of them are empty and untenanted. To preserve the spirit as well as the structure of these stately homes, the National Trust has worked out a scheme which will it is hoped be put in effect in the near future. In the case of property to be acquired by the National Trust, it is proposed to change the laws of entail, whereby an owner can prevent the sale of his estate by his heirs, although they may be financially unable to keep it up. If the buildings are of national importance, and subject to the owner's consent, the Trust will then be able to buy such entailed estates for the nation. The owner and his descendants will continue to reside as tenants in their old home and look after the house and gardens, but they must throw it open to the public on certain days. Such items as structural repairs and upkeep expenses will be provided by the Trust on condition either that sufficient land is given with the house to provide an income, or else that an endowment fund is raised to pay for these outgoings.

Unexpired

Two brothers lived in a village near Aberdeen, and travelled to town to business every day by train. One of them died, and the other decided to have the coffin containing the body conveyed by train to the city. He asked the advice of the station-master, and was told that he would have to procure a special ticket.

"A special ticket," he replied indignantly. "What would I do that for? His season ticket hasn't expired yet!"

After Effect

A WOMAN who was going abroad had been inoculated against typhoid. She felt rather queer the next day, and remained in bed. It happened that the vicar called in the afternoon, and a small daughter was sent downstairs to explain.

"Mummy's in bed," she said.

"In bed?" replied the vicar.

"Yes," went on the child, "she was intoxicated yesterday and has a bad headache."

Absent-Minded

THE professor came home one evening and joined his wife in the lounge.

"Where's your car, dear?" asked his better half.

"My car?" said the professor. "Did I take it to town with me?"

"You know you did," she told him.

"Well, that's odd. I remember now that after getting out I turned round to thank the man who had given me a lift, but he had gone."

Intermission

"You look terribly tired and depressed, old friend," said Mr. Basil Boofuls to an omnibus conductor at the end of a long, long day.

"Fezplea," said the conductor.

"Certainly," said Mr. Boofuls. "Here is my penny. One side I have left dull. The other side I have polished. Please look on the bright side."

"Ar-rh!" shouted the conductor. It was the last straw. He went mad and slapped Mr. Boofuls' wrist.

Mr. Boofuls cried. His doggie, Mr. Stench howled. The omnibus was stopped, and police took the names of sixteen people. But what can you expect with aeroplanes everywhere doing 400 miles an hour?

U.S. Anti-Nazi Drive Gains Force

President Roosevelt Expresses Indignation Of People at German Anti-Semitic Campaign; New York Crowds Boo Departing ss. Bremen

Washington, Nov. 16.

NEWS from Germany within the past few days had deeply shocked public opinion in the United States, declared President Roosevelt at yesterday's press conference. "I, myself," he said, "could scarcely believe that such things could occur in 20th century civilization." He had ordered Mr. Hugh Wilson, United States Ambassador to Germany, home "with a view to gaining a first-hand picture of the situation in Germany," the President asserted. Mr. Roosevelt carefully explained that Mr. Wilson, in diplomatic language, had been summoned home and had not been recalled.

No protests had been made in Berlin, he added, about the treatment of the Jews or reported damage to American property. The inter-Governmental Refugees Committee in London was trying to extend its help to take care of the increasingly difficult situation, he said. He had given a great deal of thought to where German refugees might be placed, but the time was not yet ripe for him to make any statement. No change was contemplated in the American quota system for immigrants.

Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said yesterday that he would not undertake to indicate how long Mr. Wilson was to be kept in the United States.

In the light of Mr. Hull's statement, well-informed circles believed that the Ambassador might be absent from Germany indefinitely.

The Secretary of State disclaimed any knowledge of London reports that the British and United States Governments were planning joint steps to aid the Jews, apart from the assistance already being given by the inter-Governmental Committee in London.

Mr. Hull said that he had not heard from Mr. Joseph Kennedy, the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, concerning the conversations which the American Envoy had with British officials.—Reuter.

United States Protests

Berlin, Uov. 16.

The United States has made formal representations to Germany regarding damage to American property during the recent anti-Jewish outbreaks, it was learned today. The Government reserved all rights, including a demand for reparations for any property suffering damage.—United Press.

N.D.L. ss. Bremen Booed

New York, Nov. 16.

The storm of anger which has swept through the United States over the treatment of Jews in Germany shows no sign of abatement.

The giant liner Bremen sailed on her homeward voyage today after a remarkable demonstration of hostility from 3,000 shouting men and women bearing placards and endeavouring to get as near the vessel as the police would allow. The Bremen left at her scheduled time to a concerted Charus of booing to which the liner retaorted with three derisive toots of her siren.

The huge crowd marched up and down the waterfront as the Bremen departed. Police reinforcements of 700 were detailed to control them. Every precaution was taken to ensure the liner's safe sailing. Two police boats accompanied her to the open sea, and the ship's sides were closely examined for bombs.

The New York Police Commissioner said that the States Department had requested him to see that German ships and the German Consulate-General in New York are protected.—Reuter.

U.S. Envoy Acts in London

London, Nov. 15.

The U.S. Ambassador to England, Mr. Joseph Kennedy, is attempting to induce Britain to join the United States in a practical plan to aid Jewish refugees in Germany, reliable sources said today.

Mr. Kennedy declined to confirm this report, although it was learned that the U.S. Ambassador during the past few days had conferred with the Prime Minister, Mr. Neville Chamberlain; the Foreign Secretary, Viscount Halifax; the Colonial and Dominions Secretary, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, and the Permanent Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Sir Alexander Cadogan.

It was reported that France was either consulted or would be consulted later on this subject.

Mr. George Rublee, American director of the International Refugee Committee, had prepared to go to Berlin to discuss the refugee issue, but this trip was cancelled as negotiations were made impossible by the murder of Herr Ernst von Rath, Third Secretary of the German Embassy in Paris, by a Polish Jew, it was understood.

Well-informed political circles said that the recall of Mr. Hugh R. Wilson, U.S. Ambassador to Germany, to Washington, would greatly increase Mr. Chamberlain's embarrassment over the Jewish question in Germany.—United Press.

New York, Nov. 16.

Shocked by Nazi outrages against Jews in Germany, Americans throughout the United States today began organizing anti-German boycotts, pro-Jewish relief drives and a campaign to induce the Government to lodge a strong protest in Berlin against the Nazi anti-Semitic drive.

Although American Jewish groups were the most active in organizing the anti-Nazi campaign, numerous Democratic groups and high Government officials joined the American press today in condemning the Nazi persecution of Jews.

Reich Offers U.S. To Take Jews

German Press Attacks On Britain, America Continue Unabated

Berlin, Nov. 15.

Reich authorities today informed the United States Consulate that they are willing to release arrested Jews from prisons and concentration camps and permit them to leave Germany if the United States will furnish visas.

The assurance, however, it is believed, will apply only to those Jewish prisoners whose visa applications are in order and who are assured of means of emigrating in the near future. The order will not affect those who do not possess papers entitling them to fall within the United States quota for his year.

50,000 Jews Arrested

An estimated 50,000 Jews, including many rich Jews being held as hostages, have been arrested in Nazi Germany during the past several days, reports indicated here tonight. The 50,000 arrests included about 8,000 in Berlin.

With the anti-Semitic campaign continuing, the German press today issued a stern warning to the U.S.

"Das Schwarze Korps," organ of the Nazi S.S., said ("We shall use the Jewish hostages systematically, no matter how shocking some people may find it."—United Press.

Jewish Traders Eliminated

Berlin, Nov. 16.

Only about one third of the Jewish businesses in Germany will be Aryanized, while the remaining two-thirds will disappear entirely by January 1, according to a statement issued by the Ministry of Economics today.

Aryanizing will be carried out chiefly in retail shops. In fact, the statement adds, retail and wholesale Jewish businesses must close by January 1.

It is officially stated that this does not mean that they may carry on their business until then. The intervening time may be used to liquidate their business. No shops, the statement adds, will be opened for Jews only, and Jews must buy in Aryan stores.

Anti-British Campaign

German newspapers and the wireless last night continued their campaign of criticism of British actions in Palestine, combining it with abuse of the United States for alleged misdeeds in Panama, Mexico and elsewhere.

"Der Angriff," Berlin organ of the Labour Front, splashed an article denouncing the "brutal policy of suppression" pursued by the British in Palestine.

The "Hamburger Fremdenblatt," attacking America, declared th[at] the "lynch law is a typical Ameri[can] stitution, and the action of Am[erican] warships in Panama, Nicaragu[a] Mexico ought to be remembered by the Americans before they criticise Germany's treatment of the Jews."

The German people, the journal added, were answerable only to their own conscience, and the "newly-born world Power of Germany will not tolerate any meddling in her internal affairs."—Reuter.

British Empire Jews Set Day of Prayer

Leaders Seek Government Aid for German Refugees

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Nov. 16.

It is announced here that the Chief Rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the British Empire, Dr. Joseph Hertz, has called on Jewish congregations in the Empire to observe next Sunday as a day of "humiliation and prayer," in view of the terrible happenings in Germany.

Yesterday evening, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Prime Minister, received in the House of Commons a deputation consisting of Viscount Samuel, Viscount Bearsted, Dr. Hertz, Mr. Neville J. Laski, president of the London Committee of Deputies of British Jews Mr. Lionel Nathan de Rothschild, former M.P. and Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish Agency for Palestine. The deputation made representations relating to facilities for the emigration of Jews from Germany.

Before it is too late, we must save all whom it is possible to rescue, especially the young, declares an appeal from the Council for German Jewry, signed by leaders of the Jewish community, including Dr. Hertz, Lord Reading and Viscount Samuel.

Throughout the world, the appeal says, Jewish communities have raised great sums to assist migration, but the resources are exhausted now that the need has become greatest. Large sums, running into millions, must be found. The Council extends its appeal "for the first time" to members of non-Jewish communities.—Reuter.

German Looters Will Be Shot

Vienna, Nov. 16.

Addressing workers here today, Herr Joseph Buerckel, Nazi leader in Austria, announced that Marshal Herman Goering had authorized him to punish looters in the future with death.

The reason given was that the confiscation of Jewish property is being considered.

Herr Buerckel warned the workers that they must put national honour above best wages and remember that Germany is aiming at self-sufficiency.—Reuter.

Rumanian King And Son Arrive In England

King Carol Impresses London with Uniform

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Nov. 16.

Resplendent scenes were witnessed in London yesterday on the occasion of the arrival of King Carol and Crown Prince Michael of Rumania on a State visit.

The distinguished visitors were greeted at Victoria, where they arrived 40 minutes late because of fog in the Channel, by King George.

As King Carol stepped from the Royal train, he amazed the watching crowds by his romantic uniform, which made him the most colourful Royal figure to arrive in London in many years.

He wore the dark blue and gold uniform of an officer of the Rumanian Navy, and over it was a magnificent white silk cloak with the Order of St. Michael the Brave—the highest order of Rumanian cavalry.

Warm Welcome Accorded

King George, in a Field Marshal's uniform, with a white cocked hat and a large grey overcoat, warmly welcomed the Royal guest, who introduced him to Crown Prince Michael.

The distinguished gathering on the platform included Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Prime Minister; Lord Halifax, the Foreign Secretary; the Lord Mayor of London, and the Chiefs of Staffs.

Before proceeding into the murky fog to Buckingham Palace in an open State landau drawn by six Windsor Greys, the visiting monarch inspected a Guard of Honour of the 1st battalion of the Coldstream Guards.

Less than half an hour after his arrival at Buckingham Palace, where he was greeted by the Queen, King Carol, with the Crown Prince motored to Marlborough House to visit Queen Mary, and later proceeded to St. James's Palace, where the Chairman of the London County Council and the Mayor of Westminster presented him with addresses of welcome.

Buckingham Palace Banquet

About 160 guests, including Mr. Chamberlain, members of the Cabinet, and fifteen Ambassadors, attended a banquet at Buckingham Palace last night in honour of the visiting Royalties.

They sat at a single horse-shoe table. The King and Queen were on the left and right of King Carol respectively. Crown Prince Michael was on the Queen's left, and beside him were the Princess Royal, the Duke of Kent and the Duchess of Gloucester.

On the King's left were Queen Mary, the Duke of Gloucester and the Duchess of Kent.

The Earl and Countess of Athlone; Mr. C. R. Attlee, Leader of the Labour Party; Mr. Oswald Pirow, South African Minister of Defence, and the Rumanian Minister in London were also present.

The King wore the uniform of an Admiral, and the Queen a pompadour dress with crinoline skirt covered with bands of Valenciennes lace and embroidered with diamante. She also wore a diamond necklace and tiara.

The dinner was served in gold plate, and yellow roses, mimosa and chrysanthemums decorated the table.

The yeomen of the Guard were on duty, while the band of the Grenadier Guards played during dinner.

King George and King Carol exchanged toasts at the end of the meal.

The arrival of King Carol at Victoria and his reception by the King were televised by the B.B.C.—Reuter.

American Woman Has Narrow Escape

Shot Just Misses Wife of Tientsin Consul-General

Tientsin, Nov. 16.

When passing the bridge bordering the Race Club grounds and Chinese territory this morning Mrs. J. K. Caldwell, wife of the United States Consul-General here, narrowly escaped being hit by a bullet apparently fired by someone hidden in the tall reeds near by.

Mrs. Caldwell, who alone heard the shot, saw the bullet strike the water.

An unprecedented series of attacks, alleged to have been made by bandits, has occurred here since the order issued by the authorities forbidding Chinese and Japanese to attend races. These outrages include the murder of a Russian dairy proprietor, the hold-up of a prominent Belgian family at their residence, and the maltreatment and robbing of a hospital matron.

All these attacks occurred in the Race Course area, the insecurity of which is being drawn to the attention of the Consular body.—Reuter.

France's Grave Plight Shown

Communists Favouring Sabotage of Economic Reform Proposals

Paris, Nov. 16.

A proposal that the Confederation Generale de Travail should seek, by every method, to sabotage the economic plan of M. Paul Reynaud, Minister of Finance, has been made at the Confederation's Congress, at Nantes, by a delegate from the Nord textile section.

It is suggested that action should extend even to a general strike.

Despite enthusiastic support from the Communists, however, M. Leon Jouhaux, the President of the Confederation, has adopted a wait and see attitude. He is said to support general condemnation of M. Reynaud's decrees, but not to favour an immediate vote, as he considers it preferable to substitute some constructive motion.—Reuter.

Alternatives Indicated

Paris, Nov. 15.

Commenting on the severity of M. Reynaud's new decrees, particularly in new taxation, semi-official quarters here point out the alternatives, proved in figures showing the gravity of France's financial situation.

Public expenditure in France would in 1939 attain Fr. 137,000,000,000 as against Frs. 85,500,000,000 expected in revenue. This would give the country a deficit of Frs. 51,000,000,000.

This deficit, they add, could not be covered by a State loan in view of possibilities offered by the people's savings.

Also there are about 2,000,000 people drawing their livings directly from the State with about 1,000,000 State officials of whom some 500,000 are railway workers, 600,000 former functionaries now on pension and about 300,000 active agents or officials pensioned by the local municipalities.

Economic activity in France remained low whereas in other countries there was a recovery. Between 1930 and 1938, the index of industrial production diminished by 25 per cent., these semi-official quarters note.

Wagon-loads transported diminished by 35 per cent. while in certain other branches of industry, the decreases were even more considerable. Thus, there was a drop of 46 per cent. in the production of manufactured goods and a 40 per cent. decline in the building trade's activity.—Havas.

Mr. Homer S. Cummings Resigns

Attorney General Resuming Private Law Practice

Washington, Nov. 16.

President Roosevelt told pressmen yesterday that Mr. Homer S. Cummings, United States Attorney General, had submitted his resignation from the Cabinet, to take effect from January.

He added that Mr. Cummings had resigned to resume his private law practice.

A Dow Jones report stated that the Attorney General's most probable successor was Mr. Robert Jackson, Solicitor General.

The President also announced at the press conference the temporary resignation of his son James from the post of Secretary of the White House, while he recuperated after a recent operation.—Reuter.

Slovak Autonomy Issue Settled

U.S. Rearms to Defend All Western Hemisphere

President Roosevelt Makes Declaration on Joint Guarantee for Pan-American Liberty

Washington, Nov. 15.

WHILE Army and Navy officials today rushed plans for the greatest American peace-time armament programme in the country's history, President Roosevelt told the press that the defence problem had ceased to involve merely the United States, but embraced the entire western hemisphere. The President said that Canada and the Latin American Republics consequently shared in the responsibility of keeping the New World safe from invasion from other continents. In one of the most significant defence statements made by an American President since the Great War, Mr. Roosevelt said that the United States did not anticipate any defections from present hemispheric solidarity."

The President revealed that America's new and enlarged defence programme was being planned in view of continental solidarity against possible attack from other continents. He said that it was evident that the present safety of the Western Hemisphere was "too low."

The rapid development of aircraft was one of the most important factors considered by the United States in drafting plans for the defence of the Western Hemisphere in co-operation with Canada and the Latin American Republics. He said that Monday's conference of the nation's defence leaders here had concentrated its attention on aircraft.

Asked whether the United States contemplated the construction of a fleet capable of defending both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts simultaneously, the President replied that such a move was not contemplated at present.

Asked to name some of the specific dangers facing the Western World, the President tersely advised his questioner to read the newspapers.

Dangers in Far East

The President indicated that the United States was carefully reconsidering its insular defence problems in the Orient in connection with the broader problem of national and heisphere defence.

Asked whether the expended defence programme was intended to include the Philippines with the continental programme, the President said: "The American Flag flies over the Philippines."

Authoritative sources revealed the President had decided to transfer a large part of Federal relief funds to defence programme. Government circles said appropriations for the Army and Navy next year might total $2,000,000,000, which is double any previous peace-time record. Much of this sum is expected to come from funds now "ear-marked" for relief. Government officials pointed out that diverting such funds to the defence programme would not affect the relief rolls, since those on relief would be employed in the armament and ship building industries.

Building of Barracks

Informed circles understood that Works Progress Administration funds and other Federal relief appropriations would be used in making housing and other general improvements in Army posts and Navy bases.

Such action, it was pointed out, would enable the Army and Navy to spend regular military and naval appropriations for strictly military purposes.

War Department strategists here increased defence preparations at an unprecedented rate since the recent European crisis. When the new Congress convenes in January the Army plans to ask for $142,000,000 for immediate purchase of "mobilization supplies."

Canadian Premier Echoes Stand

President Roosevelt's Defence Declaration Fully Endorsed

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

Ottawa, Nov. 16.

President Roosevelt's remarks about the defence of the western hemisphere renewed the "note of co-operation" which he struck at Kingston on August 18, declared Mr. W. L. Mackenzie-King, the Canadian Prime Minister, in a statement today.

The statement by President Roosevelt, he added, was a further indication of the common interest which the two countries had for their mutual welfare.

The people of Canada, Mr. Mackenzie-King asserted, would appreciate the declaration, but at the same time they knew that they had their own responsibilities for maintaining Canadian soil as a homeland for free men.

"If the efforts of those striving for peace are to be successful," he added, "it will require the closest co-operation of all liberty-loving countries in making known their strength."

At Kingston, Ontario, on August 18, President Roosevelt, in opening the "Thousand Islands" bridge, said that the United States would not stand by idly if the integrity of Canadian soil were threatened by any other empire.—Reuter.

Lords Discuss Burgos Armed Ship Moves

International Law Not Being Violated

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Nov. 16.

Activities of General Francisco Franco's armed vessels were discussed in the House of Lords yesterday.

Lord Maugham, the Lord Chancellor, replying for the Government, said that the Government had no information leading to the supposition that these ships were privateers, or that they were using German harbours as a base in the sense that they were conducting warlike operations from there.

The Government, he continued, had no reason to suppose that there had been any violation of International Law in the sinking of the Cantabria, or that the Spanish Republican Government ship, which had been taken to Emden, would be condemned without the process of the law.—Reuter.

Anti-Comintern Pact May Become Tripartite Military Alliance

Moscow Says Italy Agreeable But Holding Back; Japan and Germany to Sign New Cultural Accord

Moscow, Nov. 16.

An agreement transforming the Anti-Comintern Pact into a military alliance between Japan, Germany and Italy is only being delayed by Italy, according to a leading article in "Le Journal de Moscou," which says Italy agreed to sign in principle, but is postponing her signature owing to the risk of a setback in the Anglo-Italian Agreement.—Reuter.

Japan-Reich Culture Pact

Tokyo, Nov. 16.

An agreement has been reached between Japan and Germany for conclusion of a pact for the promotion of cultural relations between the two countries.

The draft has already been prepared, and is at present being considered by the Privy Council, which is expected to give its approval to it shortly.

The pact is stated to be on the lines of the one recently concluded between Japan and Hungary.

The Japanese Government, it is reported, will seek the conclusion of similar agreements with Italy, Poland, Finland and Belgium in the near future.

The Japanese-German Cultural Pact will, it is stated, embody the following points:—

1. Japan shall recognize the racial principle peculiar to Germany on the one hand, and Germany appreciate the spirit of Nippon, on the other, and both countries shall co-operate culturally with each other.
2. In line with this principle, Japan and Germany shall mutually render co-operation and assistance in sports, literature, the fine arts, radio broadcasting and other enterprises.
3. Authorities concerned of the Foreign Office, the Ministry of Education and the Ministry of Public Welfare shall formulate plans to place the co-operation and assistance between the two countries on a concrete basis.—Reuter.

Japanese Trade on Yangtze

Many Shipments To and From Kowan Beyond Boom at Kiangyin; Export Cargoes on Increase

THE extent of Japanese trade on the Yangtze which, according to Japan's reply to Britain, the United States and France, is unsafe for commercial navigation, is illustrated by details of shipments collected by the "North-China Daily News" among shippers, consignees and lighter companies in Shanghai in regard to the port of Kowan. As stated in yesterday's issue, Kowan is a port on the north bank of the Yangtze, beyond the boom at Kiangyin to which non-Japanese vessels are denied access, the boom farther down the river being the limit of navigation.

Within the last two months, there has been a considerable volume of import and export trade with Kowan, steamers, tugs, lighters and lorchas being used. Cargo has been taken to Kowan for distribution throughout the North Yangtze hinterland and the vessels have left for Shanghai and other ports with cargoes of Chinese produce.

Taking the period of a single month's operations from the middle of October until to date, a score of vessels, all of them towing lighters and junks, have been reported at Kowan, leaving with full cargoes after two or three days in port. Some of the shipments on October were:

Ebesu Maru, towing one lighter, with an import cargo of 1,200 packages of piece goods, tobacco leaf, paper, sugar and sea products. Left with export cargo of 2,000 packages including wheat, eggs, sesamun seed and tins of oil.

Hwantung, towing one lighter, with an import cargo of 2,000 units of kerosene, and packages of sundries, left with nearly 6,000 packages of wheat, albumen, yolk and dried lillies.

Shunhang, towing two lighters, with import cargo of 4,000 packages of sugar, piece goods, soda ash, sea products and paper, left with export cargo of 3,500 packages of sesamun seed, eggs, albumen, and wheat.

Shipments This Month

Some November shipments according to information available along the Shanghai waterfront were.

Fumi Maru, towing one lorcha, with import cargo of 2,500 packages of cotton yarn, sugar, piece goods, paper and tobacco stalk and leaf, left with export cargo of 4,000 packages of wheat, eggs, egg yolk, albumen and dried lillies.

Asia, with two lighters, with import cargo of 1,000 packages of sugar, tobacco leaf, paper and sundries, left with export cargo of 7,400 packages of wheat, albumen, melon seeds and yolk.

Tai Shun, towing two lorchas, with import cargo of 3,500 packages of sugar, paper, piece goods, cotton yarn and sandalwood, left with export cargo of 2,000 packages of wheat, sesamun seed and sundries.

Shunhang and one lighter carrying import cargo of 2,500 packages of piece goods, sugar and paper, left with export cargo of 4,000 packages of wheat, egg products, albumen and sundries.

Sakura Maru, towing two junks, carried no import cargo but left with 3,000 packages principally wheat.

These are a few instances referring only to the port of Kowan. Japanese vessels are trading with other ports as far west as Wuhu, where, among other things, there has been a large exportation of rice.

Foreigners Safe In Changsha

Almost Entire City Burnt In Raging Inferno; Chinese Retreat from Sui River

Hankow, Nov. 16.

Chinese troops, who during the past few days have been behaving in a disorderly manner at Changsha, appear to be fully disciplined now and all foreigners are safe, according to a foreign report from that place. Contrary to rumours, the Provincial Governor is still in Changsha, and doing all in his power to restore peace and order.

Almost the entire city has been destroyed, with the exception of a small area in the south-east part. Changsha is regarded as unsafe owing to falling masonry.

The Yee Tsoong Tobacco Company, Butterfield and Swire's building, and Chinese Maritime Customs property on the mainland are intact, despite the recent raging inferno, but other commercial premises were destroyed.

Mission properties, although affected by the fire, are still standing. The situation at Yale University is somewhat doubtful, and the evacuation of foreigners from there to the oil installations is being considered, but hitherto no steps have been taken.—Reuter.

Withdrawal from Siu River

Hankow, Nov. 16.

Threatened by a Japanese outflanking movement in the direction of Pingkiang in eastern Hunan, Chinese troops holding the Wuning-Siushui line in western Kiangsi along the banks of the Siu river have begun retreating, aerial observation reports received by Japanese here said today.

The Chinese, the dispatches said, were falling back in groups of from 500 to 1,000 men in two directions. Some were seen marching from Siushui to the south-east in the direction of Nanchang by way of Fengsin, others were observed moving from Chatsin, near the Hunan-Kiangsi border towards Pingkiang.

Further east, near the Tungting Lake, the Chinese were reported to be abandoning their positions at Siangyin, halfway between Yochow and Changsha.

From Changsha itself, large bodies of troops were said to be moving south in the direction of Hengshan and Hengyang.

Fighting in Shansi

In Shansi province severe fighting was going on in the vicinity of Changtienchen as Japanese detachments launched an attack on about 10,000 Chinese troops attached to the 114th and 178th Divisions, according to a message from Shihchiachwang.

Tungkuan on the Yellow River has been reduced to ruins by repeated shelling from Japanese batteries at Fenglingtu across the river in south-western Shansi, the message said. Traffic on the Lunghai Railway was said to have been suspended completely since Sunday, with the result that the Chinese forces were able to reach Tungkuan only by motor cars. It was described as an isolated city.

A message from an undisclosed Japanese army base said army aeroplanes raided Sian, on the so-called "red route" through Shensi, at 11.45 o'clock yesterday morning. The raiders blew up station buildings and freight cars, cut the Lunghai Railway and inflicted heavy losses on Chinese troops, the message claimed.

Chinese troops at Sian, Tungkuan and Shanhsien were said to be disorganized.

Food for Kuling Defenders

Chungking, Nov. 16.

A squadron of Chinese aircraft was sent yesterday to drop food and ammunition to the Chinese troops on top of Kuling in order to prepare them for a prolonged siege, according to Chinese reports.

General Chiang Kai-shek is said to have sent a telegram of commendation to the Chinese troops commanded by General Yang for stubbornly holding out in the hill, which is now entirely surrounded by the Japanese.

The latest Chinese military despatches received here state that while a Chinese column in south Hupeh is doing its utmost to check the Japanese drive southward, the main body of the Chinese forces in Hunan is concentrating at strategic points along the Siang River, in the vicinity of Siangtang, Chuchow, Liling and Pingsiang, for the next major battle.

Other Chinese despatches report the renewal of Japanese military activities in south Shansi, where Japanese artillery is said to be steadily shelling Tungkuan, across the Yellow River, and causing damage to the Lunghai Railway.

Chinese guerillas on the night of November 13 are claimed to have recaptured Taierchwang and Yihhsien, in south Shantung, after over-powering the Japanese garrisons in the two cities.—Reuter.

Chengtu Raided Again.

Chengtu, Nov. 16.

Seventeen Japanese 'planes bombed Chengtu's north airfield at 12.10 p.m yesterday. Two Chinese 'planes vigorously attacked the raiders, one of them sustaining a punctured gasoline tank. However, both machines returned safely to their base.

The Japanese bombers, which also rained propaganda posters, caused no damage of military value. No casualties were reported.—Reuter.

Severe Fighting Near Canton

Japanese Hard Pressed by Chinese Counter-attack

Chungking, Nov. 16.

Severe fighting is occurring on the outskirts of Canton, according to the Chinese spokesman, who stated this evening that regular troops advancing had joined the Chinese mobile units and the local Self Defence Corps in an effort to recapture the city.

The Japanese have retreated from Canton proper, and are awaiting reinforcements from 40 transports reported at the mouth of the Pearl River, according to the spokesman.

Chinese forces advancing along the Canton-Hankow Railway have reached Siaoping station, eight miles north of Canton, it is claimed. At that point the Japanese are said to have suffered heavy losses in severe fighting.

The Chinese claim the recapture of Samshui, eight miles north of Bias Bay, thus cutting Japanese communications. The Japanese are reported to have made repeated attacks to recover the place without success.

Lungmen, Tunghua, Tsengchen and Waichow have also fallen into Chinese hands, while the Canton-Kowloon Railway has been cut at several points, it is declared.

On the West River a section of Chinese troops have advanced as far as Chenteh and reached the east end of the Canton-Samshui Railway, where they are using artillery to attack Canton, it is asserted.—Reuter.

Ambassador Interviews Chinese Ministers

Chungking, Nov. 16.

The British Ambassador, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, called on the President of the Executive Yuan, Dr. H. H. Kung, this morning, and the Foreign Minister, Dr. Wang Chung-hui, this afternoon. He also visited General Chang Chun, Director of the Generalissimo's headquarters here.

The banquet planned for tonight to honour the Ambassador has been cancelled owing to his eye trouble.—Reuter.

Jews Must Be "Obliterated" From German Business

Herr Walther Funk Admits Confiscations; Vast Berlin-Bosphorus Trunk Road Planned

Berlin, Nov. 15.

HERR Walther Funk, German Minister of Economics, announced here tonight that all German Jews would be obliterated from Germany's business world. Speaking before a large Nazi meeting here, Herr Funk revealed that the Government had thus far in the current anti-Nazi drive taken $800,000,000 from German Jews without permitting the Jews recourse to the courts.

"The Jews will receive German bonds as indemnity, and the Germans will regain their property," Herr Funk said. All necessary measures will be taken to maintain the value of stocks and merchandize which will be placed at the disposition of the population in a useful and reasonable fashion."

Herr Funk warned German businessmen against investment for the purpose of "Aryanization" of Jewish business to the extent where it might hurt other investments and German loans.

He explained it was necessary to remove Jews from business in Germany because "it is impossible to exclude Jews from our political life and still allow them to continue in our economic life."

Jews earlier had been barred from the main professions and now will find themselves practically without means for making a living in Germany. Observers believed bonds being given Germans Jews in return for their property would probably be strictly regulated so as to yield only meager returns.—United Press.

Berlin-Bosphorus Speedway

Berlin, Nov. 16.

Plans for a great motor road on the lines of Herr Hitler's famous autobahn speedways, to cover the 2,000-mile stretch from Berlin to the Bosphorus, were outlined by Herr Walter Funk, German Minister of Economics, in an interview here following his recent trade mission to the Balkans.

During his tour Dr. Funk concluded a trade pact with Turkey and started conversations for similar agreements with Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Rumania.

The proposed trunk highway would, he explained, form the backbone of a vast net work of motor roads and canals to supplement Germany's barter pacts with the countries of south-east Europe.

"It would be good business for us," Dr. Funk exclaimed.

"The Balkan countries have the necessary labour supplies and raw materials while Germany can sell them road making machinery, such as the cement mixers and concrete layers by which Germany's motor roads have been built with phenomenal speed. Later we can also sell them motor cars and lorries.

"When the Rhine-Danube canal is completed it will be possible to transport goods by water from London or Rotterdam with as much ease as they can now be sent from Vienna."

Balkan Monopoly Denied

The Minister emphasized that Germany entertained no monopolistic designs on trade with the Balkans. "There is room for everybody," he said.

Dr. Funk described the economic organization of Turkey, which he said was controlled by the Turkish banks under the direction of the government, as superb.

"Turkey has everything," he said, "wheat, oil, coal, iron ore, cotton, wool, coffee and even tea."

He described Yugoslavia as being potentially the richest country of the Balkans. Rumania, he said, was faced with a large surplus in production, the difficulty of which was to dispose of it advantageously.

The Minister added that the amount of trade obtainable now from the Balkans was small in comparison with trade with fully developed countries such as Great Britain.

Dr. Funk then explained what he described as the "secret" of Germany's present economic system.

It depended, he said, on the government's having full powers, as in Germany, to fix all costs and prices, from labour, food and housing to the price of semi-finished goods and materials.

"There are two pre-requisite conditions for the successful functioning of this system. On the one hand you must have an authoritarian government with full powers to fix all the prices, and on the other there must be nothing to disturb the circulation of credit."

Example of German Method

The Minister gave what he described as a concrete example. In order to relieve unemployment among shipbuilders and to assist German shipping the government might decide to construct a liner.

The shipping company concerned, for instance the Hamburg-America line, would finance the operation not by the issue of fresh capital, or from its own resources, but through a bill of exchange which they would get discounted. By this means they would obtain a credit so as to pay the shipbuilders, who in their turn would use the money for the payment of wages and materials.

The money, he declared, would circulate all time, giving widespread employment leading to the purchase of all kinds of goods besides foodstuffs.

Dr. Funk again emphasized that it was essential for the success of this method of financing that there should be no check in the circulation of the credit thus created in the first place by a bill of exchange.—Reuter.

The usual spate of murders—three to be exact—screaming sirens, firearms galore, an almost equal number of suspects, bullet-headed police detectives, a pretty girl, and the ever-brilliant private detective, who, naturally solves all the crimes by himself, coupled with other features, created quite an amusing story around which "The Lady in the Morgue," which opened at the Cathay Theatre yesterday, was constructed. A tale of how a girl's body disappears from the public mortuary where another body is found, followed by yet another one at some funeral parlours, "The Lady in the Morgue" proved to be quite fascinating, especially when Mr. Preston Foster as the very smart private detective arrived on the scene and proceeded to wax merry at the expense of police detectives who blundered through like a flock of graceful elephants walking in a china shop—the usual Hollywood characterization of the law's minions. Excellent support to Mr. Foster was rendered by Mr. Franks Jenks as the private detective's assistant, the latter proving to be even more brainless than the regular police in the film. He caused much amusement, however, and the film would have lost a large amount of its humour without him. Miss Patricia Ellis had little to do except to look pretty and this she did with the highest honours. All the supporting cast were clever in their portrayals of the various roles and contributed in no small way to its final success as a film which amused and thrilled alternately.—R.S.

Excellent acting, beautiful costumes, and a general setting of magnificence, all add up to a very distressing picture in "Marie Antoinette" which opened yesterday at the Nanking Theatre. The tragic story of the lovely Austrian who became the Dauphine and later Queen of France is presented with sharp realism and whatever her frailties might have been, one may be sure that she is a very charming person as depicted by Miss Norma Shearer. From enthusiastic maidenhood to the guillotine, she is seen as a woman with a heart as well as a titled position. In fact, the human side of the picture is emphasized to the heart-rending point. Those who enjoy being torn to pieces emotionally should be well satisfied, for the business is handled by accomplished artists with a vast amount of material and musical facility at their disposal. As the Swedish nobleman who worships her from afar most of the time, Mr. Tyrone Power is always grave but somehow imparts to the role a certain impressiveness. Little is seen of Mr. John Barrymore as King Louis XV except on the verge of his death throes, but the part of the famous Louis XVI is strikingly played by Mr. Robert Morley, who depicts him as one of history's major misfits,...a good man who should have lived his simple-minded life in a blacksmith's cottage. Happily, the storming of the palace is done a little more quietly than it has been done in the past and the more gruesome activities are shown by reflection in the faces of spectators. Nevertheless, the roll of the drum followed by the crash of the knife, the tearing away of children from their mother and such scenes throw an aura of gloom over the picture which makes it a heavy drama to be enjoyed by those who like historical tales well produced regardless of the pain of the theme. The film is uncommonly long, allowing only a brief newsreel to precede it.—R.R.R.

Those who prefer cinematic melodrama will enjoy the current picture at the Metropol Theatre, for the principal players are "all out" to emphasize their respective parts. Mr. Preston Foster and Miss Patricia Ellis are starred, and although competent in their respective spheres, they really have been subordinated to the supporting players. The story has to do with rampant crime in an American metropolis, but the players in spite of the development of the plot, which may confuse fact and fiction, are adept. For sheer melodrama the picture may be recommended. With such players as Messrs. J. Carroll Naish, Roscoe Karns and Anthony Quinn and Miss Evelyn Brent, the film lends itself to an hour's relaxation and enjoyment.—F.L.T.

Journal Denies the "Open Door"

Examples from Other Lands Cited as Excuse for Tokyo Repudiation of Principle

Tokyo, Nov. 16.

Japan's reply to the American Note of October 6, in which the United States made representations to the Japanese Government for the safeguarding of American trade interests in China, will be forthcoming after the draft of the reply has been approved by the Cabinet at its meeting on Friday, it has been authoritatively learned.

A Foreign Office spokesman declined to divulge the nature of Japan's reply when questioned on the subject by a foreign correspondent today.

At the same time, the "Kokumin Shimbun," in an editorial today, urges the Government to hurry up with the reply to America, reminding it that public opinion in Japan is unanimous in demanding a denunciation of the Nine Power Pact on which the United States based her representations to Japan for the maintenance of the "Open Door" and equal opportunity in China.

The paper asserts that the "Open Door" and equal opportunity is a formula devised by America in an attempt to participate in the colonization of China wherein western powers have already achieved a success.

"Open Door" Elsewhere

When demanding an Open Door in China, the paper points out, America has the Monroe Doctrine for the American continents, while Great Britain has closed the door over one half of the world by enforcing the resolutions of the Ottawa Conference in her dominions and colonies.

"There is no reason why China alone must adhere to the principle of the "Open Door" for the colonial policies of foreign Powers when all the world is closing its doors," declares the "Kokumin Shimbun."

The newspaper is sceptical as to whether equal opportunity existed in China even before the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese conflict and gives as examples the opium monopoly, under which Britain is alleged to have reaped enormous profits, and the China National Aviation Corporation in which American interests hold a dominating share.

"Japan is now taking action in China for the breaking of such inequalities and irrationalities," the journal concludes.—Reuter.

Shanghai Business Leader in U.S.

Mr. W. H. Plant on Way To Washington; Action Besought

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 15.

Mr. W. H. Plant, President of the Shanghai American Chamber of Commerce, arrived here today en route to Washington where he will confer with the United States Chamber of Commerce and various Government departments on problems confronting American business in China at the present time.

Mr. Plant, it was reported, is carrying a joint brief from the American and British Chambers of Commerce of Shanghai seeking President Roosevelt's intervention against the Japanese threat to occidental trade in the Orient.

On the eve of Mr. Plant's departure from Shanghai last month, the boards of directors of the American and British Chambers of Commerce held a meeting to which American and British, including Australian and Canadian, trade officials were invited.

The discussions involved plans for cooperation in problems facing the American and British businessmen in China during the present crisis, it was reported.

During his furlough, Mr. Plant will continue in his position as President of the American Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai.—United Press.

Censors Stop Acid-Throwing "Story"

The Japanese censors in Shanghai on Tuesday night stopped all cables by foreign correspondents concerning the alleged throwing of acid by a Japanese soldier in Wuchang at Dr. Lozan Root. Correspondents were told definitely that the military had given instructions to this effect. One man's message was stopped at 8.15 p.m. and again at midnight and the ban was not lifted until 11 a.m. yesterday.

Tokyo Windows Shake As Asama Erupts

Tokyo, Nov. 16.

Rattling of glass windows and paper sliding doors in Tokyo yesterday was ascribed by Weather Bureau officials to atmospheric vibrations caused by a violent eruption of Mount Asama, 140 airline kilometres from the capital.

The volcano erupted twice but no casualties were said to have occurred, but damage to mulberry plantations near the foot of Mount Asama was feared.—Domei.

U.S. Anti-Nazi Drive Gains Force

The National Conference of Jews and Christians summoned leaders from 1,500 American communities to White Plains, N.Y., for a meeting which will urge increased militancy in organizing public opinion in the United States against the German Nazis. Americans also will be urged to join the boycott sponsored by the American Jewish Congress. The Congress Boycott Commmittee will meet in New York on November 27 to draft further plans to enforce the anti-German boycott.

The Fourth National Dress Manufacturers' Association Convention meanwhile urged its members to donate clothing for resale with the proceeds to be given to Jewish relief organizations.

Official Protest Urged

The President of the International Labour Defence simultaneously urged 300,000 followers to join other American groups in urging the Government to make an official protest against the Nazi outrages in Berlin.

Senator William E. Borah, Republican of Idaho, said he would support a resolution protesting against German treatment of Jews, but he declined to discuss his opinion on America's possible withdrawal of diplomatic recognition of the German Nazi regime.

Senator William H. King, Democrat of Utah, said he would offer a resolution in the next session of Congress "condemning the course of Germany in violating international law." He said that unless the Nazis immediately ceased their persecution of the Jews in Germany, he would support any move to break off diplomatic relations with Berlin.

The New York City Board of Estimate meanwhile passed a resolution calling upon President Roosevelt to issue an official condemnation of the Nazi anti-Semitic campaign.

Mr. Fiorello LaGuardia, Mayor of New York who has frequently attacked Nazism and Herr Adolf Hitler, meanwhile called for public support of the United Palestine Appeal's annual programme at Madison Square Garden when entertainment receipts will be donated to refugee Jews from Germany.—United Press.

Holland Acts to Aid German Jews

Assistance from Other Governments Sought

The Hague, Nov. 16.

Dr. Hendrik Colijn, the Prime Minister, speaking in the Lower Chamber yesterday, stated that the Netherlands Government had entered into negotiations with Governments of Great Britain, France, Denmark Belgium and Switzerland to consider the possibility of giving assistance in the emigration of German Jews. He had not, however, received any replies.

Dr. Colijn explained that Holland could not act alone, because too many Jews would flock there.

Meanwhile, he added, the Government was preparing two camps for some thousands of Jews who ha already been admitted to Holland.

The Municipality of Amsterdam has unanimously adopted a resolution requesting the burgomaster to arrange for the housing of German refugees in municipal buildings, as soon as the Government has approved the admission of German refugees into Holland.—Reuter.

Britain United Over Need to Rearm

Sir John Simon Says Nation Must Bolster Defences

London, Nov. 15.

Speaking at the Constitutional Club lunch today, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir John Simon, said he thought there was reason to be satisfied that the necessity of British rearmanent was recognized practically universally throughout the country and shared not only by Government supporters but also by those who consistently and persistently criticized the Government.

In this matter Britain stood as a united nation, he declared.

The first and most urgent necessity was that the country should be adequately provided with defences to ward off the possibility of an initial blow.

Sir John added that not the least difficult of the duties which would fall on Ministers in the testing times ahead would doubtless be those of the Chancellor of the Exchequer.—Wireless through Reuter.

Japanese Band Plays to Hankow Residents

U.S. Labour "War" Continues

C.I.O. Leader Seeks Plenary Powers Over Militant "Congress"

Pittsburgh, Nov. 15.

The Committee for Industrial Organization, militant labour faction, in the second session of its annual conference here today voted to re-name itself the "Congress for Industrial Organization."

Mr. John L. Lewis, President of the C.I.O., in addressing the 450 delegates to the conference requested sweeping additions to his powers of control and direction over the organization. He claimed these were needed to safeguard the C.I.O. against the attacks of the A.F.L. and other enemies.

Mr. Lewis proposed a new constitution for the "Congress" which would vastly increase centralized control, and at the same time increase the organization's revenues by means of additional taxes on members.

The proposed taxation would call for collection of five cents per week from each member of national and international unions, and fifty cents per week from each member of local industrial unions affiliated with the C.I.O.

The constitution proposed for the first time today provides for a "cabinet" consisting of a president, two vice-presidents, a secretary, a treasurer and an executive board of 45 members. The tendency toward centralized control in the organization is apparent as the five members of the Executive Board would vote for 2,021,845 C.I.O. members on matters of general policy.—United Press.

Colonial Solution Offered Fuehrer

Mr. Pirow to Suggest Two Alternative Ways For Settling Question

Paris, Nov. 16.

Mr. Oswald Pirow, the South African National Defence Minister, will take a plan to Berlin providing for the settlement of the colonial question, "Le Matin" reported from well-informed circles in London.

Mr. Pirow will tell Herr Hitler, says the paper, that Germany could create a colonial dominion both rich and useful, along the western coast of Equatorial Africa.

In other words, he will suggest to the Fuehrer new colonies in place of the ones lost by Germany following the Great War.

These territories would include a part of the Cameroons, a section of Angola, and a piece of Congo. These territories are fertile, and have access to the sea.

Mr. Pirow will also take with him an economic plan by which Germany would be able to obtain raw materials by means of a "colonial" "pool" administrated by an international bureau in which all European nations having interests in Africa would be represented, including Germany.—Havas.

U.S. Rearms to Defend All Western Hemisphere

A dual plan has been developed envisioning instant marshalling of the nation's armed strength, augmented by vast stores of reserve supplies, together with legislation to gear the national economy for a war emergency.

The plan is predicated on "defence" rather than "offence," War Department officials said today. It has been officially named "protective mobilization."

Exactly how the plan fits in with the Navy Department's programme could not be ascertained but it is presumed the Navy is taking similar steps.

Two-Phase Army Plan

The Army's plan is in two phases. The first involves placing into service those men and supplies instantly available. The second calls for industrial preparation for a sustained effort, and the creation and maintenance of channels of supply and communication.

The plan has been drafted so as to avoid costly mistakes revealed by the Great War. Officials point out that the last war was one of "position," with lines of battle established and never moving to any appreciable extent. Now, however, strategists plan a war of "manœuvre," the object being to place both man-power and supplies on a highly mobile basis.

Emergency supplies already are being stocked at strategic points although some requirements are still lacking. This will be corrected by the money to be asked of Congress in January, officials said.

Observers regarded President Roosevelt's statement on defence of special significance today because of the forthcoming Pan-American Conference at Lima, Peru, beginning on December 9.—United Press.

South Africa to Defend Union and South-west

General Smuts Speaks At Maritzburg

Maritzburg, Nov. 16.

"We are going to defend Union of South Africa and its vital interests including South-west Africa, to the uppermost," said General Jan Smuts, Minister of Justice for South Africa, in a speech here today.

The South-west has been entrusted to South Africa as a sacred trust by the League of Nations and if the necessity arose, South Africa would fight for the South-west because it is essential for their safety, General Smuts added.

"Mr. Oswald Pirow, Minister of Defence, has gone to Britain to see that we get from the British Government in manufactures the means for defence vitally necessary for the protection of the Union."—Reuter.

Train Runs to Sienning From Wuchang

Captured Railway Material Aid Repair of Line

Sienning, Nov. 16.

Large quantities of railway material stored by the Chinese along the Canton-Hankow railway facilitated the restoration of the line between Wuchang and here, Japanese army engineers told Domei today.

The first train to make the 88-kilometre run between Wuchang and Sienning arrived here at 5.40 o'clock yesterday afternoon, five hours after its departure from the northern city. Repairs to 20 breaks in the line, caused by the retreating Chinese, were made in ten days.

Large quantities of railway material and rolling stock were abandoned by the Chinese in their retreat at various stations on the way between Wuchang and Sienning.

Chinese farmers were seen tilling fields on both sides of the railway yesterday as the first train since the occupation of Wuchang 20 days ago progressed along the line.—Domei.

New Radio Call Sign For Japan

Letter Combinations to Avoid Confusion Sought

Tokyo, Nov. 11.

Communications Ministry officials today began to study means to avoid confusion in radio lanes when the eleven new radio call-sign prefixes acquired by Japan at Cairo this spring are put to use beginning on January 1.

With only the letter "J" authorized as a prefix for Japanese operated wireless stations, the Communications Ministry ran out of letter combinations. With recent use of radio in telegraph and telephone communications, new prefixes became imperative.

From 400 fishery vessels equipped with radio before the hostilities there are now 800 and this growth shows no sign of abating.

At the International Telecommunications Congress in Cairo Japan was allotted the additional call-sign prefixes of EK EM EO ER EU EV EW EX EY HG and HN in addition to J.—Domei.

COMMANDANTS of five Japanese naval stations, Chinkai, Ominato, Ryojun, Mako and Maizuru, will in future be honoured by investiture ceremonies in the presence of Emperor Hirohito, the Navy Office announced. An investiture ceremony will also be held for the Commander-in-Chief of the Independent Fleet.

AN appeal to the United States Government for immediate action against Japan was wired to Washington by the American community in Hankow on November 15, says a report to the "Sin Wan Pao." The wire pointed out the fact that Japanese restrictions in Hankow have rendered the transaction of foreign trade in China impossible.

THE New York University Alumni Club are making plans to hold a reunion dinner and dance at the new Winter Garden on Yu Yuen Road. Programme plans are in the hands of Alfred S. Lee and Percy Kwok. Tom Z. Wang is the president, Percy Chu and Percy Kwok, vice-presidents, and J. H. Sun, secretary-treasurer.

COMPULSORY registration within a period of three months of all lawyers practising within the Japanese occupied areas has been ordered by the Ministry of Justice of the "Reformed Government," says a report to the "Wen Mei Pao." Certificates for legal practitioners will be issued at $5 each upon application to the court authorities, it is reported.

MME. Chiang Kai-shek's new book, which just arrived in London, is eulogized by the "Daily Telegraph." The volume contains her numerous speeches and writings on China at war. Further editions for foreign circulation will be printed abroad. "It is impossible not to endorse the verdict of the editor of the book that Madame Chiang has won for herself inclusion in that illustrious band of women who have changed history."

DR. Julius Dorpmueller, German Minister of Communications, has arrived in London to attend the jubilee celebrations of the London, Midland & Scottish Railway. During his stay he will call on Mr. Leslie Burgin, British Minister of Transport. Dr. Dorpmueller will return to Germany on Thursday. Dr. Dorpmueller is well known in China, having for many years held a leading position in the Tientsin-Pukow Railway before the world war.

THE first tiffin meeting of the American University Club this season will be held tomorrow in the American Club, at which time the Rev. C. L. Boynton will speak on "Round the World in 200 Days." As guests of honour Mr. C. E. Gauss, Capt. J. V. Ogan and Col. J. C. Fegan will attend. The speaker has just returned from America and the Continent, having been in London at the time of the crisis. He also visited 1,000 prominent people in the United States in 36 cities during a motor tour. His talk will cover his reactions of his trip.

In an instruction to the Kwangtung and Kwangsi military authorities, says a report to "The Globe," the Ministry of Finance urges that severe penalties be imposed upon Chinese Government officials who wilfully withhold Chinese government revenue from the Central Government. Government revenue, the report states, should not be detained, but should be remitted immediately to the Central Treasury. An identic instruction was also sent by General Chiang Kai-shek recently to the Liangkwang military authorities to punish any government officials found hoarding government revenue.

East Surrey Regt. Arrives Here

Welcome Relief for Scots Soldiers; Salute Taken By Area Commander

The 2nd Battalion, the East Surrey Regiment arrived in Shanghai yesterday morning, thus increasing the strength of the British garrison in the city to two battalions of infantry, and bringing a well-earned respite for members of the 1st Battalion, the Seaforth Highlanders, which, since the departure of the Durham Light Infantry last month, has performed all the arduous perimeter duties formerly patrolled by the Durhams, and also has maintained the daily guards at H.M. Consulate and at Garden Bridge.

Arriving aboard the British India vessel Santhia which docked at daylight at Hunt's Wharf, the main body of the battalion disembarked shortly before 10 o'clock, parading on the quay prior to marching to their billets. Headed by the pipe and drum band of the Seaforth Highlanders, their own regimental band, and an escort of mounted sikh troopers of the S.M.C., the East Surreys marched through Hongkew, crossing Garden Bridge shortly after 10 a.m.

Consulate Salute

As the topee clad troops swung past H.M. Consulate a salute was taken by Major-General A. P. D. Telfer Smollet, commanding the British troops in Shanghai, while just behind him stood Colonel Joseph C. Fegan, who assumed command of the Fourth Regiment, United States Marine Corps, on Tuesday. The Seaforth Highlanders Consulate guard turned out also and stood at the "Present", according to British Army traditions, as the unit passed by.

Entering the Loong Fei gate at the Racecourse at 10.30, the regiment marched along the grass course and were halted in front of the Seaforth billets, where the men divested themselves of their web equipment and piled arms for a brief rest. Here they were able to converse with other British soldiers who had gathered there to greet them, these including, in addition to the Seaforths, members of other corps stationed in Shanghai.

Marching out of the Racecourse the East Surreys proceeded to their new headquarters on Great Western Road which had been prepared for their arrival by a large advance party from the ship, the latter having been conveyed in army lorries to the billets soon after daybreak.

Regular Station

The regiment, the depot of which is at Kingston on Thames, are commanded by Lieut.-Col. E. L. L. Acton who led the battalion through the streets of the city yesterday. Formerly stationed at Colchester, Essex, the East Surreys sailed from Southampton for service in the Far East in September this year, but were disembarked from the troopship Lancashire at Singapore during the height of the European crisis.

From Singapore the battalion was sent to Hongkong where they stayed for a few weeks prior to their departure for Shanghai, which is to be their regular station for one year, following which they will relieve the Durhams, due for Indian service, in Tientsin.

It is anticipated that the battalion will shortly appear on the various sports fields of Shanghai, an Association football team having been entered in the Shanghai Football League and a hockey XI in the Men's Hockey League, the latter combination appearing for the first time on Saturday when they meet the Shanghai Hockey Club.

Reconstruction in Asia Japan's Aim

Nation's Mission Stressed At Mass Meeting in Tokyo; Manifesto Adopted

Tokyo, Nov. 16.

A nation-wide educational campaign to acquaint the people of Japan with the policies to be carried out in the reconstruction of East Asia was launched here yesterday afternoon with a huge mass meeting attended by 5,000 persons.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the National Federation for the Reconstruction of East Asia which was organized jointly by the two major political parties, the Minseito and Seiyukai.

Mr. Ryutaro Nagai, Minister of Communications, the principal speaker at the meeting, told the vast audience which packed every corner of the public hall that Japan must be a "driving force in a movement for the reconstruction or East Asia and the establishment of world stability."

Fiery speeches in a similar vein were delivered by Mr. Chuji Machida, president of the Minseito; Mr. Ichiro Hatoyama, leader of the Seiyukai; and other leading members of the two parties.

Manifesto Adopted

A three-point manifesto adopted at the meeting emphasized the "vital necessity of crushing the régime of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, building a new China, and establishing close co-operation between Japan, Manchoukuo and China."

The manifesto declared that East Asia must be reconstructed "by developing one of the richest fields of natural resources in the world and restoring the moral culture peculiar to the Orient in order to bring to the Far East prosperity unparalleled in the world by unity and solidarity with the government and people of Japan."

Reconstruction and rehabilitation must be carried on over a long period following the termination of the Sino-Japanese conflict, the statement said.—Domei.

Young Jailbreaker Charged

Five Russians Appear In District Court

Arrested by the Settlement police after he had escaped from the French Municipal Gaol on October 25, Eugene Dolgoff, an 18 years old Russian, faced the First Special District Court yesterday, with four other Russians, two of whom were charged with Dolgoff with having stolen a large quantity of telephone cable.

Others charged with Dolgoff were Victor Ivanoff, aged 20, George Wagen, 23, Mr. Thomas S. Lea Municipal Advocate preferring a charge of larceny against the three men, alleging that they had stolen 50 yards of telephone cable on Dalny Road belonging to the Communications Section of the Japanese Army. John Zaitzeff, aged 28, and John Gomaniloff, 21, were charged with harbouring Dolgoff at their headquarters at 283 Kungping Road knowing he had broken out of jail.

Dolgoff and Gomaniloff admitted their guilt, adding that the theft was instigated by Wagen. During the production of police evidence it was pointed out that the cable was stolen on the night of November 4 and during the morning of the following day. Later the stolen cable was brought to 283 Kungping Road, which was alleged to be a hide-out for Russian thieves.

Additional charges of stealing 13 yards of electric cable belonging to the Shanghai Power Co. at Lane 207 Kungping Road were preferred against Ivanoff and Wagen, who both admitted the charge, stating that they had sold the cable to a second-hand store on Peking Road for $22.

Zaitzeff was described as the leader of a gang of thieves in the Wayside district and he pleaded not guilty to the charge of harbouring saying that he did not know that Dolgoff had escaped from prison. Gomaniloff pleaded guilty but denied together with Zaitzeff, that they had been concerned in the theft of the cable. The latter agreed that a set of burglar's tools found on the premises belonged to him.

Judge Feng, after hearing all the evidence, reserved judgment until next Wednesday.

Body of Japanese Found In Disused Well

Mystery of Disappearance Of Golf "Pro" Solved

"Tipped-off" by a Chinese cook in their employ, Japanese gendarmes investigating the mysterious disappearance of Mr. Fumio Hoshino professional at the Kiangwan Golf Club, on Tuesday recovered his body from an old, abandoned well near Eight Character Bridge, Chapei local Japanese newspapers reported yesterday.

Mr. Hoshino had been missing since October 25, when he failed to return home after leaving for the club early in the morning.

How Mr. Hoshino came to meet his death, the dailies said, still remained a mystery. The Chinese cook, the papers added, told his employers that a group of Chinese had killed a Japanese and thrown his body into a well several weeks ago. This tip was followed up, leading to Tuesday's discovery.

Surviving the late golf professional are his wife and two infant children

Municipal Advocate's Report For October

The Acting Municipal Advocate states in his report that 12,124 cases were prosecuted in the Shanghai First Special Area District Court and the Kiangsu High Court, Second Branch, during October, as compared with 10,496 cases in September. Out of the total number of cases prosecuted 10,974 were Administrative cases and 1,150 were Criminal cases. Out of the total number of Administrative cases brought to trial, 7,677 persons failed to appear and their bail was confiscated, and 25 were withdrawn as compared with 6,948 cases in which bail was confiscated and 13 cases withdrawn in September.

A total of 3,272 Administrative cases was prosecuted to completion, out of which number 3,272 persons were convicted and none were acquitted. 70 Criminal cases were withdrawn and 1,080 were prosecuted to completion, out of which number 968 persons were convicted and 112 were acquitted. The total number of Administrative and Criminal cases prosecuted to completion was 4,352 as compared with 3,463 cases in September. 4,240 persons were convicted and 112 persons were acquitted, as compared with 3,326 persons convicted and 137 persons acquitted in September. In addition, there were 95 private criminal prosecutions, as compared with 123 in September.

Ninety one per cent., of the persons charged in Criminal cases and 100 per cent. of the persons charged in Administrative cases were convicted, making the total percentage of convictions for the month 95.5 per cent. as compared with 49.6 per cent. for the month of September.

Two Houses Involved In Yangtszepoo Fire

Two houses in the Yangtszepoo district were badly damaged by flames yesterday morning following a serious outbreak of fire along Ningkuo Road. Originating at House 31, Lane 50, Ningkuo Road, the fire partially destroyed the first floor and roof of that building and then spread to House 33 in the same lane, the latter residence being slightly damaged. Engines from the Yangtszepoo station fought the flames for nearly an hour and managed to bring them under control.

Soviet Observers In Chinese Army

Aviation Instructors Fly To Sinkiang, According To Hongkong Report

Tokyo, Nov. 16.

Several Soviet military experts, disguised as newspapermen, are following the Chinese troops in their retreat from the Wuhan triple cities, information alleged to be based upon statements of an unnamed high Chinese Nationlist official now in Hongkong said today.

These men did not direct or advise the Chinese military, but merely studied Japanese tactics, the reports added.

Between 600 and 700 Soviet aviation instructors, pilots, and mechanics had entered China in the past year, according to this informant. When the fall of Hankow loomed, one half of the Soviet air force in the Wuhan area was transferred to Changsha, the other was sent far inland into Chinese Turkestan where twelve airfields have been built.

The Chinese official was alleged to be bitter against the Russians whom he charged with repeated refusals to undertake dangerous missions. This friction resulted in the Chinese command refusing the Soviets permission to fly at all.

Soviet aircraft, he was reported to have said, were "disappointing," while the technique of the Red pilots was considered by Chinese to be below that of the Japanese.

Guns dated 1917 and anti-aircraft artillery that "amazed" foreign military attachés because of its short range, were among the material supplied by Moscow to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, the informant was reported to have declared.—Domei.

Wu Pei-fu May Head Federal Govt.

Residence in Peiping is Closely Guarded

Peiping, Nov. 16.

It is learned from semi-official circles that preparations are now being made for the organization of a federal government and the nomination of its leaders.

Marshal Wu Pei-fu, former warlord and leader of the old Chihli clique, is generally regarded as the most probable candidate to head the federal government. When instituted he will probably be named the "Provisional President."

Lately his residence at Shih Ching Hua Yhan in the East City has been heavily guarded and there are frequent police patrols in its vicinity in order to ensure the personal safety of the former warlord.—Reuter.

Bean Milk Fund For Refugees Aided

$500 Will Keep Supplies Going Nearly Half Year

The Treasurer of the National Child Welfare Assocaition of China wishes to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of a cheque for $500 from Bishop W. P. Roberts of the District of Shanghai towards the fund of bean milk of the Shanghai Refugee Children's Camp at 181 Jessfield Road. This gift has been given in memory of F. J. Chapman, III, by his foreign colleagues in the Chinese Government Salt Administration.

The association is pleased to announce that the gift of $500 will help the Shanghai Refugee Children's Camp to provide 620 (the figure represents the number of children in the camp) cups of bean milk for five months and twenty days. The work of the camp has been carried on with encouraging results under the supervision of Mrs. W. A. Main, Honorary Superintendent of the Camp.

In addition to this camp for refugee children between the ages of four and fourteen due to the hostilities in Shanghai, the National Child Welfare Association of China is maintaining a refugee baby nursery with about one hundred between birth and four years. Another demonstration centre, the Shanghai Child Welfare Home, has 120 orphans between four and twelve years of age. As a project in co-operation with a civic organization for child welfare, the Association conducts another centre in another part of this city which is called the Chapei Benevolent Home, where sixty stranded street children from twelve to sixteen years are being taken care of by the Association.

Another Large Sum Taken by Gang

Money and jewellery to the total value of $2,250 was stolen during an armed robbery yesterday morning in the Louza district, thus adding yet another crime to the spate of armed robberies which have been committed during the past week.

The robbery occurred at 6.45 a.m. when three men, one of whom was armed with a pistol, broke into No. 137 Pakhoi Road, and, after intimidating the six inmates, absconded with many valuables and banknotes. Police from the Louza station were summoned after the crime and were informed that all the men had spoken Yangchow dialect.

Mr. Fumitaka Konoye, son of Prince Ayamaro Konoye, Japanese Premier, passed a busy day in Shanghai yesterday making a round of calls on Japanese officials and visiting the battlefield ruins north of Soochow Creek. Today he will leave for Hankow to get a glimpse of Japanese troops in action.

Britain Urged to Take Firm Line

Chungking Journal Warns Against Further Trading Losses; "Asia for Japan"

Chungking, Nov. 16.

"The present critical situation in the Far East does not permit of further hesitation or over-cautiousness on the part of Downing Street and Great Britain, for Sino-British interests must take immediate effective action to check Japanese aggression," declares the "China Times" in a leading article today welcoming the British Ambassador, Sir Archibald Kerr.

"We wish to call the attention of the British Ambassador," the newspaper continues, "to the following:

"1. With the fall of Canton, Hongkong, like Shanghai, has become isolated and has lost its importance as a great trading centre in the Far East.

"2. Japan's declaration of November 2 discarded previous pretences and openly announced a policy of 'Asia for Japan.'

"3. The successive loss of British interests in Manchuria, North China, Central China, and South China has been entirely due to the failure of Britain's so-called realistic policy."

In conclusion, the "China Times" urges Britain to carry out the promises made under League of Nations resolutions to give active and full assistance to China's resistance against Japan's invasion.—Reuter.

Farnes Reveals Grand Form

Essex Fast Bowler Takes Seven Wickets for 38 Runs as M.C.C. Win Again in South Africa

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

Capetown, Nov. 16.

WITH Kenneth Farnes, the Essex fast bowler, revealing splendid form, the M.C.C. yesterday defeated Western Province by eight wickets for their second straight triumph of the South African tour. In the home team's second innings Farnes claimed seven wickets for 38 runs. Besides coming down at a tremendous pace, his deliveries swung a lot. He took his wickets in 12.4 overs of which two were maidens.

H. T. Bartlett, of Sussex, was top-scorer in the tourists' first knock, carrying his bat for 91, the result of a vigorous innings lasting 120 minutes. He hit nine boundaries.

Hutton, the young Yorkshire record-breaker, again fell a victim to Brinkhaus, the Western Province fast bowler, off whom he was caught for a "duck." In the first innings, Hutton made 14 before being clean bowled by Brinkhaus.

The scores were:

Western Province 174 and 169 (Ralph 61 not out).

M.C.C. 276 and 69 for two.—Reuter.

Annual Ewo Race November 30

Charity to Be Remembered On St. Andrew's Day with Special Event at S.R.C.

By "CHING"

November 30, or St. Andrew's Day, falls this year on a Wednesday and doubtless will be celebrated in the usual hearty way by all local Scots and their friends. And doubtless in doing so, the less fortunate ones will not be forgotten and charity will command the foremost attention.

In this connection the well-known firm of Ewo will as usual run their annual race on the Shanghai Race Course, which is always placed at their disposal for this purpose through the kind offices of the Chairman and Stewards of the Race Club. The race is run on the flat and known as the Ewo Handicap Challenge Cup, which can, however, never be won outright; but the winning jockey each time has the privilege of holding it for the one year, also having his name engraved on it.

On the race a cash sweep of no small dimensions is organized, whereby charity can claim a full share, the organizers holding back a fair percentage of total receipts for this purpose, notwithstanding which there is generally left a substantial balance for distribution among the fortunate ones who draw ponies instead of blanks when the sweep ticket numbers fall out of the drum.

To ensure that charity shall get a substantial amount from this sweep it is necessary to sell a large quantity of tickets, therefore it is hoped all will come forward and assist in this worthy object by making free purchases of tickets, knowing full well a percentage of their outlay will go towards helping a less fortunate fellow-being to overcome the worries, troubles and sickness which all are liable to have to contend with.

The entry list for ponies and riders to start in this popular sporting event has not as yet been closed, so I will hold back training notes in connection with the race, as also any forecast as to the possible winner, until the date for the race more closely approaches.

Excellent Scores in "B" Coy. Shoot

November Spoon Won by Pte. D. J. Anderson

On Saturday, November 12, "B" Company, S.V.C., held their November Monthly Spoon Shoot on the Rifle Range. Some excellent scores were recorded, considering the conditions. The November Spoon was won by Pte. D. J. Anderson, "C" Class, whose score of 73 plus Class Allowance of 18.54 gave him a final score of 91.54. The best score of the day, without allowance, was 90 made by Pte. Buckley. Full scores are given below.

A friendly match was fired concurrently with a team from "B" Company, Seaforth Highlanders, which was won by "B" Company, S.V.C. The tables were turned, however, when the Seaforths won a Falling Plates Competition arranged for teams of five, which followed the main shoot.

Pastor Continues Along Comeback Trail

Scores Knockout in 2nd Round Against Dugan

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 15.

Fully recovered from a recent axe injury which necessitated twenty stitches, Bob Pastor of New York knocked out "Irish" Mickey Dugan of California in the second round of a ten round heavyweight bout tonight.

Pastor, who first gained fame by lasting ten rounds in a ten-round fight against Joe Louis, has been coming along rapidly in his determination to reach the top again and during the last few months has bowled over all opponents. The New York fighter weighted 190 pounds and Dugan 173.—United Press.

Famous Cricketer May Lose Sight

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

Taunton, Nov. 16.

J. C. White, the former Somerset and England slow left-hand bowler, who played from 1921 to 1931, lost his left eye in a shooting accident today. He underwent an immediate operation, but may not see again.

White took 100 wickets for 14 consecutive seasons.

Educated at Taunton and coached by E. J. Tylor, the former Somerset slow bowler, White has been regarded by many as England's greatest amateur left-arm spin bowler since the War.

One of his greatest feats was in 1919, when he dismissed 16 Worcester batsmen in one day at Bath.—Reuter.

Basketball Honours For Headquarters

"E" Company Give Leaders Very Close Run for Win

Play in the "A" Division of the Colonel Cates Basketball League ended successfully last night at the Navy Y.M.C.A. with Headquarters Second, unbeaten so far, narrowly escaping defeat from "E" Company, last in the section, who suddenly put up a stubborn resistance and held a slight lead until the last three minutes to lose by 19-16.

The disqualification of Carr and Winchester via the foul route enable the Headquarters to come up from behind and remain unbeaten. Winchester was in rare form by a fine start in which he netted three field goals and a foul shot. These seven points gave the "E" team an advantage of 11-10 at half-time.

Fighting desperately, the Headquarters were unable to break the opponents' tight man-for-man defence. It was not until with only five minutes left when Winchester committed his fourth personal foul that the ultimate champions managed to rise. Moore was the hero because of his two goals towards the end. He scored a total of five baskets from the field. Wilde, the star, was closely watched throughout the contest and made only two goals.

"D" Coy Defeat Augusta "N"

D. Coy scored a rather narrow victory over Augusta "N" to take second place honours in "A" Division. Davis his usual self was the highest contributor by scoring nine points, while he was well supported by Hamon, and Danzil who combined well both in attack and defence. Augusta "N" put up a gallant fight, but on account of less substitutes, the players tended to slack off towards the last half. Holsberger and Barringer starred for the Navy, both making gallant stands to stem the tide of defeat, but with tired players the feat was difficult to accomplish.

The least interesting game, which was postponed early in the season in "B" Division, was played between "F" Company and the S.V.C. Philippine Company. It ended with the Marines winning by a huge score of 48-8. In the first half the winners piled up a lead of 14-4 but ran away in the following period and, received practically no opposition.

TRAINING GALLOPS

WITH Cordon Rouge, late Waterloobey, running the fastest mile, Shanghai's racing ponies went through their training gallops early yesterday morning in fine weather on the inside course, in preparation for Saturday's Tenth Extra Race Meeting at the S.R.C. While no spectacular times were recorded, the ponies appeared fit and ready to provide spectators with interesting events.

East Surreys Entering Local Sports Fields

Reported to Have Ability As Football Players

The East Surreys, who arrived in Shanghai yesterday, will be a new threat to the various sports titles in Shanghai. The unit is reported to be a comparatively young one as far as the age of the enlisted men is concerned but however true this may be, the regiment has gained a certain reputation for itself as far as its ability on the fields of sport is concerned. At Clochester, in Exeter where they were stationed for a time, the East Surreys became known as capable of playing good football and it is believed that hockey is another one of their strong points. What they can do on the rugger field remains to be seen.

Hockey Test on Saturday

The East Surreys will receive their first hockey test here on Saturday when they are to meet the Shanghai Hockey Club "A" in a game on the Race Course. Since the departure of the Loyals, the position of Shanghai champions has been vacant with various teams seeking recognition. For two years, the Loyals held undisputed claim to that title and it would not be too surprising were the position filled by another British regiment.

Police Prepare to Meet Seaforths

In their first division league football game against the Seaforth Highlanders on Saturday beginning at R. G. 2 at 3 p.m., the Police will be represented by: F. Peasgood; H. Stangaard, J. Shute, W. Westwood, N. Doublas, J. Gibson, G. J. Clarke, T. Crook, F. Foodley, S. Greenberg, R. Wilkinson.

As a special friendship exists between the S.M.P. and the Seaforths, the Police team is in special training at "Pootung-by-the-Sea."

How Cubs Actually Beat Themselves

Mental, Physical Errors Gave Yankees Four Games In World Series

New York, Nov. 14.

The story of the 1938 World Series is that the Chicago Cubs beat themselves. The Japanese have a word for it—hara kiri.

You can talk all you want to about the prowess of the mighty Yankees but when you get through you have to admit that the National League champions committed suicide. It may be sacrilegous to doubt the potency of the triple world's champions but the facts are loud and insistent. Cubs' mistakes proved the vital factor in every one of the four games.

Here's how the Cubs dug their own grave game by game:

First game—Phil Cavarretta's ill-advised throw to third base trying to head off Gehrig on Bill Dickey's single in the second inning, which permitted Dickey to take second. With runners on third and second, the Cub infield was drawn in and Billy Herman booted an easy roller. When the inning was over the Yanks had two runs, in which one mental and one mechanical error were the important factors. The Yanks' third run resulted from a high pop fly hit by Dickey which Demaree, playing badly out of position in view of the fact that a stiff wind was at his back, was unable to reach. Score 3-1, and every Yankee run aided by Cub mistakes.

Horrible Details

Second game—The details are horrible in this game. Shortstop Jurges and third baseman Hack collided in going after a dribbling grounder hit by Gordon which went for a double, and permitted two runs to score. Left fielder Reynolds added more grief by lingering in his position and not backing up the play. Without those two runs, the Yanks would have gone into the eighth trailing, 3-0, and Crosetti's homer with one wouldn't have put the crusher on Dean. Dizzy still would have had one run to spare and Hartnett could have rescued him.

Third game—going into the Yanks' fifth with a 1-0 lead, Clay Bryant had held the Ruppert Rifles hitless. With two out Gorden hit a long fly to left, and to the amazement of everyone in the stands Reynolds came charging in for the ball. When he finally saw it, it was too late and the ball barely fell into the stands for homer. Spectators who were sitting in the left field boxes say the ball landed in the stands by only a few feet and that Reynolds might have caught it. In the fourth game Demaree caught almost the same kind of a fly hit by Gordon, with his back against stands. Even if Reynolds hadn't caught the ball a try for it might have saved Bryant much mental anguish and prevented the youngster from blowing sky high.

Three Unearned Runs

Fourth game—three unearned runs in the second inning wrecked Bill Lee. With two out, Hoag hit an ordinary grounder to Jurges who fielded the ball and then threw wild to first. Hoag was safe on a play which should have been the third out. Gordon and Ruffing followed with singles and Crosetti banged a triple, with three runs pouring in. Even Crosetti's triple might have been handled by more adept fielding. Later in the game Demaree made a much more difficult catch on Gordon's long fly. With the Cubs still in the game trailing by only one run, 4-3, Tex Carleton uncorked a wild pitch which allowed a runner to score from third. Then Crosetti hit a puny pop fly to left and the slow Demaree couldn't get up in time and it went for a cheap double. Two more runs.

As the series was played the Yanks deserved to win. They outclassed the Cubs, were surer and smarter on defense, took advantage of every break and played heads up baseball. But the fact remains that the Cubs beat themselves.—United Press.

"Shelaeff Can Hit" Admits Fasano

Californian Not Worried About Seelig's Words

San Francisco, Nov. 15.

Johnny Fasano, North Beach veteran welterweight who meets Andre Shelaeff of Shanghai at the Dreamland Auditorium on November 25 in a return bout, is not worried about predictions made by Henrich Seelig, Shelaeff's manager, about a knockout trumph for the Russian in the return fight.

"It takes more than mere talk by a manager to get a man to the canvas and keep him there for the count," said Fasano as he belted in a hard left hook into a heavy bag. "Shelaeff can hit, all right. I found that out in our first fight. But you notice that it isn't Shelaeff who's predicting any knockout over me. It's his manager."

"You've got to hit a man, and hit him hard many times, before you can put him asleep, and I feel pretty sure I know enough to keep from being hit hard and often by a kid who has had only about 30 fights, and all of them against people I never even heard of."

Fasano is working very hard for his return bout with the fighter from Shanghai. He apparently acquired a wholesome respect for Shelaeff's punching power in their first meeting, and is taking no chances in their return fight on November 25. Shelaeff is working out daily at Ryan's gym.—United Press.

Horticultural Society's Show Is Unusually Good

Entries Show Decrease Owing to Prevailing Conditions in Shanghai's Garden Districts

THE 51st Autumn Flower Show of the Shanghai Horticultural Society which was thrown open to the public yesterday afternoon, in no way indicates the difficulties with which growers have been faced owing to prevailing conditions in the outlying garden districts of this city. Alone, the reduced number of entries and the fact that not a single Chinese exhibit figures in this season's exhibition, make it possible to realize that conditions have not yet returned to normal.

As is usual at the autumn shows, the bulk of entries consisted of Chrysanthemums and, if the September drought was said to have been detrimental to these flowers, no indication to this effect is discernible. Mrs. G. E. Mitchell's winning entry with 96 blooms, in no way lags behind exhibits of previous years.

Only 10 decorated dinner tables were exhibited as compared to the 12 entries of the Spring show. Throughout the afternoon yesterday, the greater part of visitors of the exhibition spent in appraising the value of these exhibits. One of the most original, if not practical dinner tables seen for a long time, is entry number three, which represents a Hungarian peasant table with wooden table utensils in very bright colours. Instead of flowers, the main background of the decoration is made up of very artistically embroidered materials which give the exhibit an unusual touch.

A Problem Solved

Exhibit number nine is unusual as well and should come as a boon to Shanghai hostesses who find themselves in a quandary as to how five or, for that manner, any odd number of diners should be seated.

Entry Number 10 in a rust and mauve colour scheme is also likely to be of usual interest, both in the way of flower arrangements as well as the unusual shape of the plates.

As a whole, this class should bring very keen competition as each entry in one way or another, has something of its own.

The junior class with 60 exhibits did not quite come up to previous standards, flowers as well as vases and bowls not quite equalling entries of previous shows.

List of Awards

The best Chrysanthemum plant in the Show.—1, Mrs. G. E. Mitchell—The National Chrysanthemum Society's Certificate of Merit.

The East Surreys Arrive in Shanghai

The 2nd Battalion The East Surrey Regiment arrived in Shanghai yesterday, the salute being taken by Maj.-Gen. A. P. D. Telfer-Smollett outside the British Consulate. Picture shows the saluting base with Lieut.-Col. E. L. L. Acton, commanding the East Surreys, mounted.

Liang Hung-chih In Tokyo

"Reformed Government's" Head Pleads for Unity in Asia in Press Statement

Tokyo, Nov. 16.

Mr. Liang, Hung-chih, visiting chairman of the Executive Council of the "Reformed Government," this morning signed the Imperial Palace register, following which he paid calls at the residences of Princes of the Blood.

In the afternoon, Mr. Liang called on the Premier, Prince Ayamaro Konoye, and key members of the Cabinet. He was the guest at dinner of Prince Konoye.

Appreciation of Japan's goodwill and continued support, coupled with the hope of achieving "a common stand" in East Asia, was voiced by Mr. Liang in a statement to newspaper representatives at the Imperial Hotel here last night.

Mr. Liang arrived by plane from Shanghai yesterday afternoon to confer with Japanese Government, military and civilian leaders.

Declaring that the fall of Canton and Hankow had strengthened the "Reformed Government" with additional China provinces rallying to the five-coloured banner of new China, Mr. Liang's statement said that the Powers were about to revise their attitude towards the new state of affairs in East Asia.

Japan's "Sacrifices"

Tribute was paid to the "great sacrifices" made by Japan in dispatching her military forces against the troops of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, who "failed to understand diplomacy and ignored rightful advices, to cast his lot with Communism." Condolences and words of comfort to the Japanese war dead and their families were also contained in the statement.

"Anti-Communism, frendliness to Japan and economic co-operation with her form our basic administrative policy," the statement pointed out in reviewing the seven-month period of the "Reformed Government's" existence, during which time "peace and order have been restored and agricultural productivity increased, with higher efficiency noted in the entire administration."

Mr. Liang observed that the new government still had "a long way to go" in order "to dispose of all the defective phases in the social, political, cultural and daily life brought about by the old régime," and pledged his Government's determination to exert its utmost in the cause of reconstructing a new China to bring about Sino-Japanese friendship and peace in East Asia.—Domei.

The head office of the Federal Reserve Bank of China has appointed Mr. Kuo Hsi-fan as resident representative at the Tientsin Customs to look after the funds collected by it, according to the Chinese press.

Similar resident representatives to other Customs houses will be appointed by the Federal Reserve Bank in the near future, it is added.—Reuter.

Japanese Children Copy Parents

Miniature Admirals and Generals Visit Shrines

Tokyo, Nov. 16.

Nation-wide observance of Japan's annual children's festival took on the aspect of miniature military and naval reviews yesterday as scores of boys and girls in the uniforms of field marshals, fleet admirals and Florence Nightingales paraded in the streets of Tokyo.

Escorted by mothers and sisters, the youngsters marched to the Meiji Shrine and other Shinto shrines. The festival is held yearly in honour of boys and girls who reach the ages of three, five and seven.

In normal times the children wore ordinary kimono in their parades to the shrines. This year the war atmosphere caused a change in their attire to that of gala full dress. Army and Navy suits for the boys and Red Cross dresses for the girls.—Domei.

Japan's Budget 1939-40 Aims High

Amount to Y.4,500,000,000 Being Estimated

Tokyo, Nov. 16.

A sum of Y.4,500,000,000 is represented in the Budget estimates for 1939-40 submitted by the various government departments.

The estimates, which are at present being considered by the Ministry of Finance, consist of Y.2,800,000,000 in "basic expenditures" and Y.1,700,000,000 in new demands.

Considerable pruning will be necessary, as the Ministry of Finance is reported informally to have assessed the budget at Y.3,400,000,000.—Reuter.

New Franco-Reich Accord Sought

Non-Aggression Pact Carefully Canvassed To Improve Relations

Paris, Nov. 15.

A non-aggression pact between France and Germany has been virtually completed along the lines of the Anglo-German Munich accord, a French Foreign Office spokesman announced here today.

Simultaneously, however, the French Foreign Minister, M. Georges Bonnet, announced that France would refuse to cede any colonies to Germany if such a proposal is made during the forthcoming conference which will discuss means of satisfying Germany's colonial demands.

The announcement was made after the Minister of Foreign Affairs conferred with the Premier, M. Edouard Daladier, on the subject of the forthcoming visit to Paris by the British Prime Minister, Mr. Neville Chamberlain. The statement implied that Britain and France would discuss the question of Germany's demand for colonies during the visit here by the British Prime Minister.

The forthcoming Anglo-French discussions also are expected to deal with the general European situation, with special emphasis on events following the Munich accord.

Mr. Chamberlain will arrive here from London on November 23 and is expected to stay two days.—United Press.

Quai d'Orsay Dementi

Paris, Nov. 15.

The visit paid by Baron von Weiszaeckev, State under-Secretary in the Reich's Foreign Office, to the French Foreign Minister; M. Georges Bonnet, before leaving for Berlin, was purely a courtesy call, official quarters here stated this evening.

The German diplomat thanked M. Bonnet for the medical attention given Herr Ernst von Rath, Embassy official shot by the Polish Jew.

During their conversations, no mention was made of Franco-German negotiations first brought up during the long interview held recently at Berchtesgaden between Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and M. Andre Francois-Poncet, then French Ambassador to Germany. It was then, just before M. Francois-Poncet's Departure to take up his new post in Rome, that Herr Hitler voiced his desire for friendlier Franco-German relations.

Commenting upon Paris-Berlin parleys, official circles declare some arrangement can be reached if there is really a great desire for some such agreement.—Havas.

Soviet Communists To Reorganize

New Propaganda Effort Sponsored to Instruct People in True Faith

Moscow, Nov. 15.

Asserting that there is insufficient public knowledge of the theoretical side of the Party's workings, the Central Committee of the Communist Party decided today upon a complete reorganization of its propaganda and public education systems.

Instructions were published today which will reorganize methods of giving the people education in the Marxist and Lenin doctrines of the Party.

An abridged course on the history of the Communist Party in Russia recently founded, will form the basis of Communist teachings.

The course is contained in a manual written upon the inspiration of M. Josef Stalin himself, and it was printed with the purpose of liberating Marxist literature from inaccurate vulgarizations and anti-Marxist errors.

Such mistakes, it is said, crept in especially in characterizations of historical figures, in presenting understandings of just and unjust wars and in outlining in false aspects the Bolsheviks of Russia.—Havas.

King of Italy Sends Letter to Pope

Conciliatory Note on Racial Law Questions

Rome, Nov. 16.

King Victor Emmanuel has replied favourably to a personal message from Pope Pius, complaining that Italy's new racial legislation infringes the Concordat.

Hope that a compromise may be reached between the Italian Government and the Vatican in the method of application of the new racial law is expressed in Vatican circles, following the King's favourable reply.

According to the semi-official Vatican daily, "Osservatore Romano," the King's reply says that the greatest attention will be paid the Pope's missive, in order to reach a conciliatory solution.—Reuter.

Corrigan China Arms Case Adjourned

Mr. Lafitte Tells How Willing Took Bad News

London, Nov. 16.

The case, in which Dennis Corrigan is charged with the attempted shipment to China, in April, of boxes alleged to contain armaments, but actually containing only bricks and rubbish, has been adjourned to November 22.

The magistrate, for the third time, refused Mr. Corrigan's application for bail.

During the hearing yesterday, Mr. Theodore Lafitte, manager of a well-known firm of armament agents in Paris who was stated to have been defrauded of £7,250, said he had met Mr. Chou Tin-shu, also involved in the case, at the Chinese Embassy in both Paris and London.

On both occasions, Mr. Lafitte declared, Chou was without his hat and coat. He had permits purporting to be for importation to China.

Mr. Lafitte added that he did not make enquiries about Chou at either Embassy, because he believed and had confidence in Frederick and James Willing to whom he gave the sum of £7,250.

Asked what had made him suspicious regarding the cases at Marseilles, Mr. Lafitte said that the weight of the cartridges appeared to be incorrect and that the cases, which were supposed to hold guns, weighed only two kilos.

Mr. Lafitte agreed that, when the substitution was discovered, Frederick Willing had rushed round to see him, terribly upset and saying that he and his son were innocent of the substitution, which was a "terrible shock" to them.—Reuter.

New York Stocks

Tuesday's Closing Quotations

New York, Nov. 15.

Stock prices on Wall Street today finished with losses from fractions to about one point predominating. Traders early held aloof from the market, owing to apprehension over the political tension in Europe, coupled with the gyrations of sterling. However, substantial support appeared in later dealings and losses were recovered. Aircrafts were prominent, whilst steels were aided by the strength of steel scrap prices both in Pittsburgh and Chicago. Rubber issues rallied after early heaviness following the increase in the quota to 50 per cent. for the first quarter of 1939. Coppers were listless, as the copper export price eased. Meanwhile, opinion is divided regarding the immediate outlook. The turnover today totalled 1,470,000 shares.

Dow-Jones Summary

By Courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

Traders on the Stock Exchange continued to adopt a cautious policy today, pending more definite indications of the nearterm trend. Prices recovered substantially, following an early decline, whilst the hardening of steel scrap prices aided sentiment. Favourable factors today included: the signing of the Anglo-American Trade Agreement due this week; anticipations of a rise in commodity prices; and the improvement in retail sales. However, the weakness of sterling depressed all markets, combined with the further selling of stocks in London and indications of lower carloadings.

U.S. Commodities

Tuesday's Closing Quotations

New York, Nov. 15.

An early decline was witnessed in the cotton market, owing to the uncertainty of the European political situation and the easiness of the Stock Market, which caused moderate liquidation and discouraged new buying. Foreign orders appeared on both sides of the market, but selling predominated, while hedging was light and was mostly confined to late months. Later, trading chiefly consisted of December liquidation and exchanging. Closing quotations were barely steady, ranging from 3 to 10 points down from yesterday's final levels.

The rubber market early moved lower in sympathy with London advices, on the increase in quota to 50 per cent., the weakness of sterling and dealer selling and liquidation. Subsequently, prices rallied on a good demand, chiefly from factories, which was attributed to the optimistic outlook at Akron where it is expected that the world consumption will total 80,000 to 85,000 tons per month for the first quarter of 1939. At the close, losses from 15 to 17 points were recorded.

Higher levels were witnessed in the Chicago Wheat Pit today, influenced by the firmness of overseas and Winnipeg advices and reports of unfavourable weather in Argentine. The fixing of an Argentine minimum price is believed to be indicative of an official entry of another country in the subsidy field. At the final bell, gains of ¼ of a cent., were registered.—Reuter.

N.Y. Cottongoods Report

New York, Nov. 15.

The early activity witnessed in the New York cottongoods market during the past week was influenced by Eruopean and domestic developments, with demand, which was confined chiefly to spot and nearby deliveries, broadening after the eradication of the European tension and the settlement of the truck strike.

The early improvement was short lived as deterrent influences appeared in the shapes of unseasonal temperatures and the unwillingness of mills to grant conversions.

However, values tended to stiffen later, with impetus given to activity by the constructive trend of the Elections, the continual broadening of industrial activity and an advancing Stock Market.—Reuter.

Berlin Bourse

Berlin, Nov. 15.

The recovery which set in on the Share Market here yesterday made further progress in the first hours of today's session and several leading issues were able to regain the price levels of the previous week. Business was however very restricted and largely assumed the form of genuine investments.

The return to calm within so short a time, the Berlin newspapers state, is a proof of the discipline prevailing on the various German exchanges.

Continental Rubber rose 4½ points, United Steel advanced one and Lignites jumped 3¾ points. The market became irregular towards the close.—Trans-Ocean.

U.S. Freight Loadings

New Yorg, Nov. 15.

Estimates released today by the Railway Shippers' Advisory Board indicate that freight-car loadings throughout the United States for the final quarter of 1938 will be about 3.6 per cent. below the corresponding figures for 1937.—United Press.

Reichsmark Quotations

Berlin, Nov. 15.

The Reichsmark was quoted today at New York 40.05, Paris 1528, Amsterdam 73.90 to 74, London 11.725.

Paris quoted sterling at 178.72 to 178.76 and the Gold Dollar at 38.06 to 38.08.—Trans-Ocean.

Refugee Lottery to Resume Drawings

Cost of Tickets Reduced And Prizes Altered

Tickets for the next drawing of the Refugee Relief Lottery which will take place at the Candrome on December 9, are now on sale at Exchange Shops, Stores, etc. This is in accordance with the announcement made at the 3rd Drawing that by reciprocal arrangement with the organizers of the S. R. C. Champion Sweepstakes, the sale of tickets for the next drawing would not commence till November 10. There will be no drawing of the lottery for the month of November.

In view of the present economic situation, the management of the lottery has decided to depart from the standard practice of issuing full $10 tickets sub-divided into 10 shares of $1 each and have placed on the market full tick
